League Calls Committee Into Session — Hoover to Launch Inquiry

BULLETIN

Washington (AP)—Secretary Stimson said today the Navy League's statement attacking the administration's naval policy contained "flagrant misstatements evidently deliberate."

Washington (AP)—The Navy League summoned its executive committee today to meet the charges by President Hoover that it had spread "untruths and distortions of fact" regarding its naval policy.

Even as the summons went forth, word came from the White House giving the purpose of the inquiry the president intends to have made into the statements circulated by William Howard Gardiner, president of the league.

Theodore Joslin, one of the president's secretaries, said:

"The objects of the president's inquiry are, first, to call the attention of the country and members of the Navy League to the tissue of falsehoods that have been spread by Mr. Gardiner and, second, to show the true purpose of these falsehoods and the people who are interested in propagandizing them."

The president said last night that after the investigation was made he would expect a public apology and a correction of Gardiner's "misstatements." Earlier, the Navy League had accused the chief executive of an "abysmal ignorance" of naval needs and an effort to "starve" the navy.

Gardiner said last night he was surprised the president intended to appoint a committee of his own rather than sponsor a congressional investigation, which he said he would welcome.

Officials of the league in calling its executive committee to meet here as soon as possible refused to discuss any further the statement by Gardiner until after the meeting has been held. No exact date was set for the gathering.

The executive committee is composed of Colonel Henry Breckinridge, Mr. Gardiner, Arthur Curtis James, Henry Cabot Lodge, Nelson Macy and Ogden Reid, all of New York city; Walter Bruce Howe, of Washington, chairman of the board of the league; N. M. Hubbard.

Two Saved From Mine; Four Perish

Rescue Workers Reach Entombed Men in Pennsylvania After 133 Hours

Mechanic, Pa. (AP)—Rescue workers shortly after 6 o'clock this morning brought out alive two of the six miners entombed last Saturday by an explosion at the local mine of the West End coal company. The others were dead.

Those rescued are John Tomashunas, 40, father of seven children, and Joseph Matzoni, 22, mine official said both were in excellent condition considering they had been buried alive for five and a half days. Both will survive the ordeal, physicians said.

The dead: John Molitoris, 35, father of three children; Jacob Tinius, 45, father of four; Henry Geglarski, 23, single, and Paul Novak, 40, whose wife is in Europe.

A crowd of about 200 were waiting at the mouth of the mine as Tomashunas and Matzoni were brought in an ambulance. Among the crowd was Mrs. Tomashunas. She was taken to the mine officers where officials assured her that her husband was in good condition.

"When I got the message that he was all right I felt just as if he had come from the dead," she said.

From rescue workers it was learned that two of the dead men had been killed instantly by the force of the explosion and that the other two had been victims of after-damp.

Novak, a brakeman, had gone out of the entry to get a car just as the explosion ripped through that part of the shaft. He and Tinius, a laborer who was working nearby, were in.

WIGGIN SEES BETTER BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Washington (AP)—A substantial improvement in business conditions was forecast today by Albert H. Wiggin, New York banker.

Questioned by Chairman LaFollette of the senate manufacturers committee, the Chase National bank official said recovery abroad was essential to domestic recovery and that while American export trade amounted to only 10 per cent of production this was "an enormous value."

"It's the last 10 per cent that makes business profitable or unprofitable," he added. "We are going to get an improvement here," he said, adding he believed the betterment would be substantial.

OSHKOSH YOUTH HELD AS MEMBER OF CULT

Oshkosh (AP)—Herbert Krueger, 19, high school student and basketball player, recently involved in an Oshkosh cult, was arraigned today on charges of committing acts of moral turpitude by County Judge D. B. McDonald, sitting in municipal court. Krueger's bond was set at $2,500 pending appearance tomorrow for examination.

The complaint against Krueger was filed by Mrs. Florence Jones, wife of Avery C. Jones, former county superintendent of schools, now serving a sentence in Waupun prison, having been found guilty of a similar charge.

Paper Says Edison's Son By First Marriage Seeks To Break Father's Will

BULLETIN

Wilmington, Del. (AP)—William L. Edison, one of the three children of the late Thomas A. Edison by his first marriage, announced today that he would contest the will of his father on the ground of undue influence by his stepmother and half brother, Charles.

Wilmington, Del. (AP)—The Evening Journal today says William L. Edison, one of the two sons of the late Thomas A. Edison by his first marriage, intends to try to break his father's will.

Edison, not directly quoted, refuses, according to the Journal, to say anything further pending consultation with his attorneys.

Edison was not at his home when inquiry was made there but it was said he was not the one who would start a contest. No further information was available.

William L. Edison, who lives at Westover Hills, a suburb, is retired from business. He is about 55. He is an inventor and has been pursuing chemical research work, principally in connection with radio.

"GENEROUS" TO WIDOW

West Orange, N. J. (AP)—Thomas A. Edison provided for his widow with the utmost "generosity," a statement, Charles Edison, said in a statement today.

He declined, however, to say what the monetary value of this provision might be. Mrs. Edison, who was the inventor's second wife, was left nothing in the will filed yesterday. Edison explaining in that three year old document that he had provided for her "adequately" during his life time.

Charles Edison's statement was issued as the result of a published story speculating on Mrs. Edison's wealth. He said the "amazing collection of misstatements" in that story comprised "one of the wildest flights of reportorial imagination and exaggeration I have ever read."

The inventor left the bulk of his estate, known to have a value of many millions though the exact worth of it is not known, to Charles Edison and the latter's brother Theodore. Charles and Theodore are the sons of Edison and the inventor's widow. It was left to them to decide how much should go to the four children of the first marriage after the latter had been given certain specified shares.

Although Charles Edison indignantly denied all statements in the story published today concerning Mrs. Edison's alleged great wealth he declined to amplify in any way his statement that she had been provided for with "utmost generosity."

Robber Slain By Druggist in Milwaukee

Second Man Is Seriously Wounded and Captured During Holdup

Milwaukee (AP)—A courageous Milwaukee druggist, Andrew Toth, 28, who refused to be held up, today shot and killed one robber and wounded and captured another.

Before Toth was able to reach a small rifle which he used to shoot rats in his basement, he engaged in a terrific hand to hand struggle with robbers who had held a pistol to his heart. His head was battered with bottles. Show cases in his north side store were wrecked. The pharmacy is at 223 E. Center-st.

The slain robber was identified as Thomas Brady, 23. Andrew Hammerer was seriously wounded.

When police and citizens arrived at the scene, Toth bleeding profusely from wounds on the head, was on the sidewalk holding his rifle over Hammerer and mumbling, "they would try it, would they?" Brady lay dead in the doorway.

The robbers entered the store at 9 o'clock a. m., when school children were walking to the school at the corner and when Toth was alone.

"We want to look at the want ads," said one of the men.

"Go ahead," said Toth, pushing a paper toward them.

Then Brady, described by Toth as the "tough guy" of the pair, produced a pistol and shouted "hands up, we want your money."

Toth raised his hands and they went through his pockets, finding $13.

Demand More Money

"There's more than that, come across with the rest of it," Brady commanded. There was more money in the place, but Toth, becoming more and more infuriated, refused to tell where. He was commanded to lock the front door, which he did.

Then he was ordered to a prescription room at the rear of the store. There Brady pressed the pistol against Toth's heart and said, "Buddy, I'll count to three and then let you have it if you haven't told me where the money is."

He started to count—one, two, and at the count of two, Toth brought up his fist on Brady's chin. They grappled, rolling over on the floor, and struggled desperately for the robber's pistol.

Hammerer jumped into the melee and soon began to reach for bottles. One after another he brought them down on Toth's head. Gradually Toth seemed to be getting the better of both, and at every opportunity he edged closer to the soda fountain, back of which was his little rifle.

Attempt to Flee

The robbers suddenly started for the door and at the same instant Toth sprang for his weapon. Their earlier command to Toth to lock the door probably was their undoing.

Toth shot once and the bullet wound through Brady's heart. Before he died he gasped, "you've got me, buddy."

Hammerer managed to unlock the door and Toth shot the second time as he was dashing out. The bullet lodged in his chest and he fell to the sidewalk pleading for mercy.

Meanwhile the uproar caused no end of confusion outside. There were several calls to police raid squads which flocked to the drug store. School children trooped to the store and traffic was jammed. In the flow of traffic was the car of Sheriff Al Benson.

The sheriff ran up, pistol in hand, and before comprehending the situation held up Toth, still standing there with his rifle. When he understood the situation he called an ambulance.

EX-CONVICT ADMITS HE KILLED SHERIFF

Rapid City, S. D. (AP)—James T. Lawton, 31, an ex-convict and former Pennington jail trustee, signed a confession today in Deadwood, State Sheriff Bruce A. Barnes said, to the slaying of William P. Baken, 62, former Pennington co. sheriff, at his home here Oct. 19.

Baken was shot six times by a man who entered his home and fled after the shooting. He died two hours later.

Lawton confessed, the statement revealed, to having shot Baken because "he was always drunk and mean to the family." Lawton has been living at the Baken home since the day after the shooting.

Give Details Of American's Death Struggle With Lion

Nairobi, Kenya, East Africa (AP)—Details of a hand-to-hand encounter with a wounded lion near Tanganyika, in which W. H. Herren, American hunter, received fatal wounds, were revealed today.

A native gunbearer seized the wounded lion by the tail and pulled it away from Herren, a contractor of Aberdeen, Wash., it was learned, but his heroism went for naught because the victim died several days later.

Herren, his wife and two other Americans were on a big game safari in Tanganyika when the tragedy occurred. Herren with Gus Peret, of Portland, Ore., separated from the other members of the party and went to take pictures.

Subsequently Herren shot and believed he had killed a large male lion. Peret started filming the scene as Herren approached the beast.

when Herren shouted "Gus he's got me." The supposedly dead animal had suddenly leaped upon the hunter.

Herren fired but he was too late and man and beast soon were struggling on the ground with the hunter's two hands in the lion's mouth. His companion was unable to fire for fear of hitting Herren. Then a native griot, seized the lion's tail and dragged it away. Peret then shot the beast to death.

The victim was rushed by steamer to Mwanza hospital where he died Sunday from gangrene poisoning. Previous to the accident the men had taken several remarkable photographs of a fight between two full-grown male lions over a lioness. It was believed the victorious animal was the one responsible for Herren's death.

Although the Lawrence team is idle this weekend, Appleton high school will meet the Oshkosh eleven here at the Lawrence field. A play by play report will be published on this game.

Nitti Seen As Heir To Al's Throne

Police School Speaker Sees Bitter Fight for Control of Capone Gang

Madison (AP)—A prediction that Frank Nitti, now incarcerated in Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax evasion, will succeed Al Capone as Chicago's gang leader was made here by R. V. Jackson, assistant state's attorney of Chicago.

"Nitti," said Mr. Jackson, who was here as guest speaker at the annual police school, "was sent up for a term of 18 months and he will be released in four or five months. As the strong arm or enforcer" of the Capone gang before his conviction I think he is the logical man to step into Capone's shoes, after a bitter fight."

The assistant state's attorney does not believe the conviction of Capone has shattered the latter's organization for all time. He expressed the opinion that some 3,000 Chicago hoodlums must be jailed before the gang is broken.

In an address to the school last night, Mr. Jackson said a tooth and nail struggle for Capone's throne may be expected by a dozen of the latter's lieutenants within 60 or 90 days.

The immediate questioning of strangers would aid materially in keeping gangsters out of the smaller Wisconsin communities, he said. Because of their proximity to Chicago, many Wisconsin communities have been selected by gangsters as "hide-outs" and Wisconsin police could easily discover the whereabouts by keeping a close check on strangers, the speaker said.

ANOTHER SUIT FILED AGAINST LILY PONS

White Plains, N. Y. (AP)—Lily Pons, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, was made defendant in another suit today by Maria Gay Zentello.

Mrs. Zentello, former operatic singer, declares in suits filed here and in New York, that Miss Pons broke a contract whereby Mrs. Zentello was to be her manager and get 15 per cent of her earnings. The suit here asks $100,000 damages and that in New York asks $350,000.

SURE SLAIN WOMAN IS NOT HIS SISTER

Shawano (AP)—Convinced that the brown-haired woman whose body was found near Mattoon, Wis., Tuesday is not his sister, Frank Broyen, farmer living near Anoka, Minn., returned to his home today.

At first Broyen was uncertain and he planned to call a brother to examine the body here, but later study, particularly of the peculiar scar of an operation, convinced him the body is not that of his sister who eloped from her Minnesota home last week with a Chicago man. Broyen's sister was 25. The woman whose body is held here was a little older, authorities said.

Chamber of Commerce Committee Offers Compromise Cut Suggestion

BULLETIN

The board of review at 3 o'clock this afternoon approved of a blanket reduction of 15 per cent in the assessment on city property, thus accepting the compromise agreement suggested yesterday afternoon by the special chamber of commerce committee.

Although it refused to be moved from its stand that a blanket reduction of 20 per cent in the reassessment figures for Appleton would establish true property values, a chamber of commerce committee which appeared before the board of review and the common council at an informal hearing at the city hall yesterday afternoon, suggested that a compromise reduction of 15 per cent be approved.

The board promised to consider this proposal and give the committee an answer today. If the 15 per cent reduction is turned down the special hearing, scheduled by the board of review for Monday night, be held to provide an opportunity to present evidence which is claims will support its contention that the values now are 120 per cent instead of 100 per cent, as they should be. Up to noon today the board of review had not acted on the compromise suggestion.

Opinions expressed by Mayor John W. Goodland Jr. and three members of the board, Aldermen Philip Vogt, Oren Earl and E. H. McGillan, indicate that the board is convinced that a reduction of 10 per cent will bring about true equalization.

In Favor of Cut

However, Alderman George Richard, also a member of the board, expressed himself as favoring the blanket reduction of 20 per cent.

Paul V. Cary, Sr., appeared for the chamber committee. He said that he was representing the Bader Printing company and M. A. Schuch, in order to make the appearance legal, but that in fact he was appearing for the chamber committee. He said that the committee is not interested in individual assessments, but that it represents the city as a whole and that it believed that the assessments are actually higher than the averages of the Wisconsin Tax commission are 20 per cent too high.

Mr. Cary pointed out that the committee has arranged to present prominent realty dealers at the hearing Monday night to show that actual sales since the first of January will prove that the assessment figure is actually higher than the amount for which the property could be sold. He said, however, that if the board is ready to make a blanket

NO CHARITY GAME FOR BADGERS, M. U.

Unable to Arrange Date, Marquette Athletic Director Says

Milwaukee (AP)—There will be no charity football game between Marquette University and the University of Wisconsin this year, it was announced today by Conrad Jennings, Marquette athletic director.

The proposed game is definitely off, Jennings said after a conference last night with Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, of the University of Wisconsin faculty and George Little, Wisconsin athletic director.

"It was a question of dates," said Jennings. "We have no open dates in November, and a conference rule forbids December games. A conference rule also forbids post season games with non-conference teams, but it is my impression that this barrier could have been surmounted."

SAYS HIS PLAN WILL PROVIDE WORK FOR ALL

Urges Shorter Hours for Division of Jobs by Wisconsin Employers

Madison (AP)—Governor LaFollette called a group of state's industrial leaders into conference at the capitol today and told them that if they will agree to divide up the jobs now available in industry by manipulating the hours of labor, his contemplated public works program will provide enough additional jobs to give work to every one who wants it.

Touching upon the recommendation he will make to the special session of the legislature to be called soon, the governor definitely committed himself to the principle of the contraction and expansion of hours by industries to spread employment, but left the field open for alternatives.

He said he would be "more anxious" to consider any alternative plans offered by the industrial leaders, and this was to be made the subject of a discussion in the executive officers' later in the day.

"I hope that the voluntary cooperation of all our leadership will reduce to the minimum the necessity for governmental action," the chief executive said. "But action, as intelligent as we can make it, there must be—not a year from now, but in the immediate present."

After the governor finished his address, the industrialists "were considered" it would be better to give the bulk of their normal employment a new sense of stability "than to have to pay out the equivalent sum in taxes," he left them to think the matter over.

F. J. Sosenbrenner, of Neenah, president of the Kimberly-Clark company acted as chairman of the discussions, which were held in executive session. It was announced that the reaction to the governor's proposal would be made in a subsequent statement.

Representatives of the state's industries accepted invitations to the conference.

Meanwhile the legislative interim committee on unemployment meeting in a different part of the capitol to formulate its proposals to the special session was having difficulty reaching an agreement. Its meetings also were held behind closed doors and the delay lent strength to the prediction that an unanimous committee report would not be forthcoming.

Public Works Program

The fact that the governor anticipates recommending a general public works program with state aid and a legislative appropriation to the localities to carry the needy through the winter, had previously been announced by him. There has been no concrete estimate as to how much the public works program will run, and the governor gave no inkling of it in his speech today beyond the promise that it will be large enough to "absorb" the existing unemployment number of unemployed. If the industries will consent to divide up the prevailing jobs.

As an inducement toward that end Gov. LaFollette pointed out that economic manipulations of hours of employment cannot be imposed upon the employers without enabling them to intensify their existing demands, and without enforcing reasonable terms and conditions upon the various branches of a given industry.

The governor said that sharing of employment among those who do and do not have ready cash, those who have work and those who have found must be prepared to share it with those who have none.

Tracing the effect of machine age improvements, insofar as they have displaced manpower Governor LaFollette said:

"We must find some basic principle that will act as a guide in the problem of machine production. We have such a principle in relation to taxation; namely, that taxes should be levied in accordance with ability to pay them. Wisconsin's definite attempt to apply that principle to the operation of its government during the past twenty years enables this state to face the present emergency in a better financial condition, with less of a tax burden upon the people than any other state in America today. If we could find some basic principle to apply to these problems of both cyclical and technological unemployment it would be an outstanding achievement."

"Such a principle has been suggested as a result of the conferences that have been held during the past year. That principle succinctly stated is this: That as an economic society we should adopt the standard that whatever work is to be done, shall be done by all of us; if we have a large volume, we all can work more;

ASKS FOR COOPERATION

Public Works to Provide Enough Additional Work to Meet Demands

Smith Corporation Head Maps Buying Campaign For Hoover

OFFERS PLAN AS JOB MEASURE IN UNITED STATES

Tells President Campaign Must Be Backed With War-time Fervor

Milwaukee—(P)—A concerted, nationwide campaign of buying-undertaken with the organization and some of the fervor of a war-time drive to buy bonds or save meat—has been suggested to President Hoover by L. R. Smith, head of the Smith corporation, as a means of providing work for 2,500,000 men.

Mr. Smith is the only Wisconsin member of the president's emergency committee. Appointed to serve on the emergency committee, he submitted the unemployment problem to the elaborate research department of his plant. It evolved a plan which, in volume form, was submitted to the president's committee at a meeting in Chicago last week.

Mr. Smith would get from industries pledges to buy immediately 15 per cent of their annual requirements in materials, deliveries to be spread over a six months' period.

Retail distribution would be achieved by agreement of every family able to do so to buy an average of $79 more merchandise than would be required normally in a three months' period.

In explaining his plan Mr. Smith emphasized that it is not a "buy now" campaign. To be successful, he said, it must be a studied, concerted effort in which the large majority of industries and individuals participate wholeheartedly. It put into effect the Smith research department knows precisely what the results would be.

It would provide a form of "job insurance" for a six month period.

It would mean additional wages of $1,474,884,000.

It would move merchandise valued at $6,400,000,000.

The stimulus of such activity would be far-reaching and it would be the start of an upward movement not easily stopped.

But to put the plan into practice would require a tremendous amount of energy. He urged wholehearted cooperation of industry and banking, and he appealed to the patriotic spirit of the consumer to do his share.

"The appeal to the individual will have to be based primarily on emotional motives," he said, "the same character as is used in community chest drives." "In addition, however, a strong rational motive exists in the fact that present purchases are at a low point, so that forward buying should be advantageous from a monetary standpoint.

Where "Bluebeard" Faces Trial

Here is the opera house at Clarksburg, where Harry F. Powers, West Virginia "Bluebeard" and accused slayer of five, faces trial at the November term of court. A new courthouse is still under construction and a temporary room used for other cases in the federal building is regarded as too small to accommodate the crowds expected at Powers' trial. Ford Motor Co. Back To Old Minimum Wage Scale

Detroit—(P)—The Ford Motor company has returned to the 6-a-day minimum wage, abandoning the $7 "emergency rate" placed in effect Dec. 1, 1929, which it described as a $35,000,000 "contribution to the betterment of conditions."

A statement issued last night said the company reverted three weeks ago to the $6 rate "paid by the company throughout the so-called 'prosperity years' of 1919 to 1929."

"The Ford Motor company has not changed its standard wage rates nor abandoned its basic wage principles," the statement said. "Its wages remain the highest in the automotive industry."

For several weeks there have been persistent rumors of a wage readjustment in Ford plants, but until last night, company officials declined to discuss them.

Henry Ford announced the increase in minimum wage rate from $6 to $7 a day following a conference of business executives with President Hoover shortly after the collapse of the stock market in the fall of 1929.

At the same time, last night's statement said, proportionate increases were made to every employee in every plant. This "emergency rate," the company said, has cost the company $35,176,101, or an average of $1,500,000 a month, during the 22 months it has been in effect.

"Under the system of automatic raises in pay which has been in operation at the Ford shops," the statement said, "the 'depression dollar' assumed large proportions."

Payrolls during the period the $7 rate was in effect were given as $397,442,837.

Coincidental with the reduction in the minimum wage, the company said, it abandoned the rule by which men were hired at a $5 a day probationary rate and the minimum $6 rate will apply at once for ordinary labor, grading upwards in the more skilled jobs.

"Hiring-in day under present schedules ranges from 75 cents to $1 an hour, according to the grade of employment," the statement said, and added, "at present the company has no employment except for men working on its plants."

A three-day-a-week schedule has prevailed in most departments of the Ford plant for nearly two years. A few departments have been on a five-day basis, but others recently have been closed down entirely, supposedly in preparation for the production of a new model expected around Jan. 1.

GOLD IN SOUTH DRAWS MINERS AS COST DROPS

Digging Is Resumed in Appalachian Mountains—Clear Old Shafts

Charlotte, N. C.—(P)—Interrupted by the rush of richer fields in California in '49 and again by the civil war, gold mining is being resumed in the Appalachians.

Lower production costs as a result of deflated prices of materials and abandoned mines more profitable.

In Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, shafts dug by slaves are being cleared on the Frank King farm.

Less than a mile away is the Capp's Hill mine which yielded more than $2,500,000 of gold ore in its day, more than 25 years ago.

Near Rockwood, Tenn., A. K. Johnson, a doctor, is digging a tunnel into an old cave. He claims to have come into possession by an old bearskin map by Chief Owl, an old Indian whom he befriended.

Resume Digging

Digging has been resumed in the Collier creek district in Monroe county, Tennessee.

In the Dullonsville field, Georgia, one operation alone has resulted in sale of more than $40,000 of gold to jewelers in the past five years.

Dr. Henry Mace Payne, consulting engineer of the American Mining congress, offers figures showing that from the earliest period up to 1930 gold valued at $51,000,000 was mined in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee.

Interest in Appalachian gold is first recorded by Spanish explorers of the early sixteenth century.

The first gold nugget found in North Carolina was found in 1799 near Concord and weighed 20 pounds. Since then gold has been mined in approximately 400 localities in the state.

For many years before the civil war "Bechter dollars" were common currency in North Carolina. The Bechter brothers operated their private mine and coined their dollars in competition with the government.

SIGNS ERECTED TO DESIGNATE PARK SANCTUARY

Punishment of Future Violations in Telulah Area Is Promised

Prominent signs, furnished by the state, and announcing the existence of a wild life refuge, have been posted about the area of the newly established Telulah park wild life sanctuary. Future violations of the regulations governing such refuges will be severely punished, according to authorities.

Although announcement was made several weeks ago that the area had been set aside by the state conservation commission as a wild life refuge, considerable damage has continued there. Branches have been cut from trees and shrubs dug up. Residents of the neighborhood have reported these acts of vandalism. Up to the present time offenders have been let off with a warning, but since the signs have been posted, ignorance of the existence of the sanctuary will not be accepted as an excuse, officials point out.

Appleton is one of the few cities in the state having such an area entirely within its city limits available for sanctuary purposes, and is probably the first where such a sanctuary has been established. It was established for educational purposes, as well as to protect the wild life growing there. Many rare trees, shrubs and flowers are still to be found within its limits. Practically all of the song birds native to Wisconsin nest here in season, and in addition a few woodcock and pheasants, as well as rabbits and squirrels, make their home in the park, while ducks and mall frequent the waters of the slough along the river. With the setting aside of this area as a wild life refuge, all these interesting forms of wild life come under the protection of the state.

In most such sanctuaries the public is excluded, but because Telulah park sanctuary was also established for educational purposes, no effort is to be made to bar visitors. On the contrary, they will be encouraged to visit the park and to study the wild life which it contains. But they must respect the law and refrain from injuring trees or plants, or molesting the birds and animals.

Priest Asks For Right To Reform Boy

Walla Walla, Wash.—(P)—As 12-year-old Hubert Nicolls began a life sentence in the Washington penitentiary for murder, an offer to reform the boy came today from a priest at Omaha, Neb., while a member of the Wickersham commission. He declared the youth should have been hanged.

At Seattle, Kenneth Mackintosh, member of the Wickersham commission and former justice of the state supreme court, said:

"The boy undoubtedly always will be a criminal, a continued menace to society, and it is reasonable to expect that at some future time he will again be at liberty. 'Life' under our present system means only a few years in the penitentiary. He should have been hanged."

Defense counsel announced that Father E. J. Flanagan, who conducts a boys' home at Omaha, had asked to be given custody of Hubert.

"I feel that the boy has never been given a chance," Father Flanagan telegraphed. "I will take him to my home and be responsible for him."

Meanwhile, the lad, who arrived at the prison late yesterday with a smile on his face, was placed in a cell by himself. He was permitted to keep his prized possessions, a cornet and a harmonica.

An instructor will be assigned to give him school lessons. He will have no playmates.

The boy shot and killed Sheriff John Wormell of Astoria who surprised him during the burglary of a store. The jury verdict fixed the life sentence. The death penalty was not asked by the prosecution.

STORE BURGLAR AGAIN ESCAPES FROM OFFICERS

Echoes of the burglary of the Fashion Shop here last fall were heard several filling stations during the summer of 1930 were heard in Appleton Friday with announcement that Roy Johnson, one of the men alleged to belong to the gang which was responsible for the thefts here, escaped from Ashland-co authorities Thursday.

Acting on a tip the Ashland sheriff raided a cottage in the Gordon lake district, but Johnson escaped. His brother, Arthur, was captured and authorities found numerous stolen articles and a stolen car.

Johnson and Gale Bandy, who was shot last winter in Los Angeles, were alleged leaders of a ring which committed burglaries in 12 Wisconsin cities and Minnesota. Johnson has been caught several times, but has always escaped. Bandy also escaped from a state jail and then went west, where he was killed.

CRASH-PROOF TANKS

Washington—Crash-proof fuel tanks for airplanes may be assured through the use of a new synthetic material similar to rubber. This material is described as a "new elastic and strong synthetic material having many properties of rubber but insoluble in gasoline or oil." Crash-proof tanks are essential to present-day aircraft to prevent fires in accidents.

STUDENT PROWLERS ANNOY COPS DURING INITIATION SEASON

Minneapolis—(P)—Policemen, annoyed by nocturnal research, hope university boys will hunt for stray cats and the like in the University district only.

Dark figures flitting through alleys have been chased. Caught, the boys explained this is the Minnesota fraternity initiation season. Brethren ordered something brought that roaming be confined to the home district, where it is expected, was made of fraternities yesterday. It must be done, said a police captain, "before somebody gets hurt."

CROOKS PROGRAM IS RECEIVED WITH MIGHTY ACCLAIM

Tenor Displays Musicianship That Few Artists Have Shown Here

Richard Crooks, American tenor, filled Lawrence Memorial chapel with beautiful music last night, in the opening concert of the Community Artist series. Moving from powerful crescendos to delicate melodies, without perceptible shift from one to the other, he displayed a musicianship that few artists have brought to Appleton. The texture and beauty of his voice, and his capacity for emotional expression, made his winsome little "Clorinda" as appealing as the Schubert and Handel numbers, and whether his selection was light and frolicking, or moving tender, he won the unstinted applause of the large audience.

Perhaps a bit hungry for a program of this nature, the artist's series crowd took Crooks to their hearts and received his offerings with mighty acclaim. A little formal at first, the tenor, who without his smile has a touch of the Mussolini about him, became affably American toward the end of the program, apparently feeling the warmth of feeling in his audience.

His remarkable artistry had its best vehicle in the Schubert and Handel numbers. "Where E'er You Walk" in the Handel group, an encore, brought particular applause, and in Schubert's "Serenade", always popular, the tenor showed all his power to sing a caressing melody. His ability to handle the mechanics of music were displayed in "Wohin" and "Undenken" up to the heights of words stepped on each other's heels steadily but never stumbled. In the chirper, lively "Wohin" the audience caught the infectious chuckling of the artist, and two minutes later rose with him to the heights of the unbridled climax of "Troekne Blumen."

Shows Vocal Breadth

In the selection from "The Persian Garden," "Ah, Moon of My Delight", the full range of Crooks' power in vocal breadth was exemplified, and in "Into the Light" he showed operatic ability hardly expected from an artist who has clung so closely to the concert form.

"Retreat" with its clear and lovely tones and the lilting "Believe Me If a True Believer" and "Young Charm" built up to the climactic "You're in My Heart Alone" which the tenor sang with a sincerity of feeling that was now tender, now dynamic, now twinkling. "Songs My Mother Taught Me" by Dvorak, "L'Amour too Yours" and "Song of Songs" were encores to which the audience was particularly receptive, a fact which Crooks acknowledged with one of the characteristic little lifts of his eye that lent a touch of informality to his singing.

Philip Evans, accompanist, showed brilliant technique and command of the mechanics of piano in his two numbers, "Malaguena" by Lecuona and "Rhapsody" by Dohnanyi. His encore, a spirited number, was especially well done.

The next program of the Artist series will be given by Szizget, Hungary's greatest violinist, on Dec. 2. Tickets can be secured at Lawrence Conservatory or at Belling drug store.

WORK SPEEDED UP BY FEDERAL TARIFF GROUP

Commission Busy on Investigation Asked by Members of Congress

Washington—(P)—Everyone is stepping lively at the tariff commission these days. The speed control has been advanced a notch to expedite investigations requested by senators and representatives.

Congress convenes in less than six weeks and the commission wants to have as many reports ready by that time as possible.

In addition, there is the regular work of the commission—applying a yardstick to the cost of production of articles in the United States and abroad—to determine if there should be any modification of duties imposed by the Hawley-Smoot act.

Investigations covering 84 articles are in progress. Hearings have been held recently by some of them and others are to follow.

Since the commission was re-organized, slightly more than 13 months ago under the tariff act, investigations covering 46 articles have been completed—nearly one a week.

Decreases were recommended and proclaimed by President Hoover on 12 articles, increases on 10 and 20 were left unchanged. On four others the commission recommended reductions but the president returned the report for further study in view of disturbed agricultural conditions.

Chairman Fletcher said the commission had recommended raising duties on imports valued in 1929 at $5,900,000 and decreases on imports valued at $40,000,000. Imports on which no change was recommended were valued at $83,500,000.

The commission is empowered to recommend that existing duties be raised or lowered by as much as 50 per cent. Final approval rests with President Hoover.

Meanwhile, as the members labor, President Hoover is giving consideration to a successor to the late Alfred F. Dennis of Maryland. A close friend of the president has said he had decided upon Daniel F. Steck, former senator from Iowa.

Another vacancy will occur next month when Chairman Fletcher retires. He submitted his resignation last spring but President Hoover prevailed upon him to serve another six months.

The disturbance which was centered over Wisconsin yesterday morning has lost much of its force and now overlies southeastern Wisconsin. It has caused light rain throughout the upper Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio valleys, the lake region and the northeastern part of the country. Fair weather prevails over most of the western states, due to high pressure over the northern Rocky Mountains, with below freezing temperatures reported from many western states. Light rain or snow flurries may be expected in this section tonight, followed by fair weather Saturday, with little change in temperature.

Investigate Slashing Of Tires On Dozen Cars

Tires on 10 or 12 automobiles were slashed with a knife by vandals last evening while the machines were parked on streets in the east end of the city, according to reports received at the police department.

The names of the owners of the machines whose cars were the object of the attack were not taken by the department, but the complaints were registered and Officer Gus Herserkorn was sent to investigate. Three machines parked on College-ave in front of Memorial chapel were damaged. Then several cars parked in front of the Lawrence college library on Union-st also were object of the attack. Next the vandals slashed tires on a group of cars parked just off the alley between Brokaw hall and the Armory.

Police Chief George T. Prim said the work evidently was that of a group of over-enthusiastic youngsters bent on a premature Halloween celebration. The chief said the department has several clues and that if the vandals are apprehended they will be taken into court. In almost every case where the tires were slashed they had been damaged so badly that they must be replaced.

Northwestern Railroad Approves Relocation Of Stockyards

COST OF CHANGE TO BE BETWEEN $3,000, $5,000

Start Work Immediately on Building at New Location

Relocation of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company's stockyards to Appleton, Junction, north of the freight yards and west of the passing track on the Ashland division, has been approved by company officials, and work on the new stockyard buildings will get under way immediately, according to word received here this morning from headquarters at Green Bay. The cost of the new stockyards will be between $3,000 and $5,000, according to rail officials. The present stockyards are located in the northwest corner of the city, between N. Division and N. Superior streets, north of the new freight depot.

The decision of railroad officials brings to a close a long controversy between property owners along N. Division-st and the railroad company. Numerous hearings were held at which time property owners protested the present location, claiming that livestock was paraded along the street bordering their property. Petitions protesting reconstruction of the stockyards at the present site in the downtown yards were circulated and signed by a large number of people living in the vicinity of the yards.

Protests Heard

Protests of property owners were heard about a year ago at a hearing conducted here by the Wisconsin Railroad commission. The meeting was attended by Andrew R. McDonald, a member of the railroad commission. At that time it was pointed out that the present stockyards were located in the commercial light manufacturing district, and that under such zoning there was nothing wrong with their location.

These hearings were arranged by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, which for a long time has been one of the proponents of the relocation program.

It was through the efforts of the rural affairs committee of the chamber, headed by W. E. Smith, chairman, that the original action for the proposed relocation program was taken. The rural affairs committee held various conferences with railroad officials pointing out the need for new stockyards on a more suitable site.

The old stockyards, off N. Division-st, have been used for approximately a half century. Several times the stockyards were partially demolished by red-tailed cars. Two years ago the entire south side was wrecked when a freight car, derailed in a heavy snow storm, crashed into the structure.

The new stockyards at the Junction will be larger than the old structure. The building will have two cattle chutes so that two cars can be loaded at one time. While construction work is in progress on the new building, the old stockyards will be used for shipping cattle, according to railroad officials.

TEACHERS PLEDGE AID FOR PROGRAM

24 Attend Conference at Shiocton High School Thursday

Twenty-four teachers of rural schools in the vicinity of Shiocton pledged their support to a community program to be presented at Shiocton high school the latter part of November, at a conference at Shiocton high school yesterday afternoon. The conference was called by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, who presided. Mr. Meating asked the teachers to cooperate with Shiocton business men in staging the event.

Preliminary plans for an exhibition at which school projects would be shown, were discussed. The teachers adopted a suggestion by Mr. Meating that the schools work together to produce an exhibition which would show the development of the country from early times through the present with a prediction of the future. Each school would undertake to produce a project showing one phase of this development. Work is to be started on the plan at once.

After the conference the teachers were guests of Mr. Meating at a dinner at the Eben E. Rexford tea room.

D. A. R. BACKS HOOVER NAVY DAY STATEMENT

Madison—(P)—Delegates to the annual convention of the D. A. R., of Wisconsin today adopted a resolution supporting President Hoover's Navy day proclamation in which he said "the first necessity for our government is the maintenance of a navy so efficient and strong that in conjunction with our army no enemy may ever invade our country."

A memorial resolution, honoring Hugh Emerson Percy, who as a forest ranger in the Brule district, aided in establishing the D. A. R. forest in that district was adopted. The resolution provided that a tree in his memory should be planted in the forest and that it should be marked by a bronze tablet.

stantly killed. Molitoris and Ceglar-ski were uninjured by the blast, but they ventured out too soon afterward and fell victims to after-damp. Thomashunis and Matzoni had been entombed about 133 hours.

TELL STORY OF RESCUE

Naticoke, Pa.—(P)—Rescued after being trapped for 133 hours in an anthracite coal mine at Mocana-ga, John Thomashunis and Joseph Matzoni today told in simple but dramatic language the story of their imprisonment.

Matzoni, a young man of 22, gave credit to Thomashunis, a miner of 40 years experience, for their being alive.

The explosion occurred in the West End coal company mine last Saturday night, trapping six men, four of whom were found dead when the other two were rescued, early today.

When the explosion came, Matzoni said, he and two others started to rush through the tunnel to see what had happened. Thomashunis called them not to leave, and as they kept going Thomashunis grabbed Matzoni and pulled him back. The other two were overcome by after-damp before they had gone more than a few feet. Two others were instantly killed by the blast.

Thomashunis and Matzoni gathered up the safety lamps and dinner pails of the four dead and prepared for a long vigil. A mine car, half filled with coal, was their bunk-house. Thomashunis cautioned Matzoni to eat sparingly, and as a result their food lasted until yesterday. They still had drinking water when rescued.

For three days they heard the thud of the rescuers' picks as the squads cut their way through a 50-foot wall of coal.

During the day the men spent their time in talking and walking to the obstruction in the tunnel to listen for signs of rescuers.

"Then for three days," said Thomashunis, who is also in the hospital, "we heard, pick, pick, pick, pick."

Neither of them, Thomashunis said, had any doubt that they would be saved, but when their food gave out yesterday they began to be seriously alarmed. Within another day or two, their drinking water would have been gone, too, he said.

Edward Gallagher, a senior assistant mine foreman, was first to push through the debris to the clear tunnel where the two men were trapped.

Thomashunis said nothing as he and Gallagher met, but Matzoni broke down and wept after shaking hands with the foreman.

reduction that the hearing would not be necessary.

It was pointed out by Mayor Goodland that the board of review has listened to so many complaints that it is convinced that a blanket reduction of 10 per cent would solve the difficulty and head off complaints. The mayor's stand was substantiated by Alderman Vogt, McGillan and Earl Alderman Vogt said that he had carefully noted every complaint the board had received and that he is convinced that a 10 per cent reduction would solve the problem.

Vogt Favors Cut

Alderman Vogt further said that in almost every case the complainants were asked whether they would be satisfied with a reduction of 10 per cent and that they invariably answered they would. He said that while the 10 per cent cut would not solve all the difficulties, that any individual cases could easily be settled by the board.

Alderman Richard said, he disagreed with Alderman Vogt and the others. He said it was his opinion, drawn from the evidence he had heard by protesters appearing before the board of review, that a blanket reduction of 20 per cent would be necessary to settle the difficulties.

Three members of the chamber committee also briefly presented their views. They were David Smith, C. K. Boyer and John Nel-son.

They pointed out that they went to Madison this week to the state tax commission because they thought that was the place to make application for a reduction. They learned there, they said, that the assessment placed on Appleton for the purpose of equalization with the rest of the state is 10 per cent less than the value placed by the recent reassessment of the city, and the commission suggested a reduction of 10 per cent.

The committeemen said, however, that they believed testimony can be produced to show that the actual values are more than 10 per cent below the assessments. They pointed out that the assessments which now stand were made early in the year and that there have been recessions in value since that time.

Both the mayor and Aldermen Vogt, Earl and McGillan said that from the complaints they had heard so far that at least 95 per cent of the taxpayers would be satisfied with a cut of 10 per cent.

DENY HABEAS CORPUS WRIT FOR TEXAS MAN

Judge Sets Aside Contentions of Defense—Pyeatt Held for Trial

Judge Fred V. Heinemann in court today this morning refused to grant a petition for writ of habeas corpus, seeking the release of Cyril Pyeatt, who gives his address as Memphis, Texas. Pyeatt is charged with obtaining $10 by fraud from Vernon Helbel, an employee at the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store on N. Appleton-st. It was charged Pyeatt used a "short-change" trick to dupe Helbel out of $10.

Contention of Pyeatt's attorney was that the arresting officer had no jurisdiction; that the complaint was not sufficient because it did not charge a crime, and that the arresting officer did not sign the complaint. All three contentions, however, were set aside by Judge Heinemann and Pyeatt was remanded to the custody of Sheriff John Lappen pending his trial on Nov. 4. Pyeatt, who was arrested at Stevens Point Monday, is being held under bonds of $1,000.

GIRLS CONTINUE OBSERVATION OF SCOUT PROGRAM

Community Service, Important Phase of Organization, Studied

Community service, one of the most important phases of Girl Scout-ing, was observed today by nearly 200 Girl Scouts in Appleton as part of a nation-wide observance of national Girl Scout week. Saturday will bring the nineteenth anniversary of the Girl Scouts in the country and the commemoration of the birthday of the organization's founder, Mrs. Juliette Low, Savannah, Ga.

Bluebonnet troop, under the leadership of Miss Esther Ronney, presented a program at 9 o'clock this morning at the Othello school. Several Girl Scouts, chosen from all eight troops in the city gave a special program at St. Elizabeth hospital this afternoon. "Get Well" cards, made by the Girls Scouts themselves, were presented to each patient in the hospital. The program at the City home will be given by scouts at 6 o'clock this evening. Other troops in the city will perform troop projects during the day that are of service to the community.

In observance of Mrs. Low's birthday, Appleton Girl Scouts will take troop hikes Saturday, with campfire ceremonies and programs devoted to Founder's Day programs. The book, "Juliette Low and the Girl Scouts," compiled by women leaders in the United States and Great Britain, will be the basis of many programs tomorrow. Saturday, October 31, is the completion of a week of Girl Scout activities days which have included homemaking, handicraft, thrift, community service, hostess work and health.

The local organization is sponsored by the Appleton Woman's club with Miss Dorothy Calkin as local director.

About 200 scouts attended the annual Halloween costume party Thursday night at Alexander gymnasium. Games, a ghost walk and a story program were features of the party. The leaders had charge of the affair.

EXPECT BRITAIN TO DELAY PLANS FOR TARIFF ACT

Action on Measure Not Likely Until Early Next Year, Belief

London—(P)—Action by the national government on the question of a protectionist tariff for Great Britain is likely to be delayed until after New Year, it was indicated today, while a special committee of the cabinet makes a thorough study of the entire economic and political situation.

The prospect of possible "dumping" of foreign goods in the interim was foreseen, however, it was said in political circles, and there is a possibility some kind of emergency legislation to act as a check on heavy imports may be proposed soon after parliament meets Nov. 10.

All parties would be represented equally on the proposed investigating committee, it was understood, and the committee would make a complete report to Prime Minister MacDonald after the conclusions of the inquiry, which would embrace the question of a protective tariff as well as other matters bearing on the restoration of prosperity.

The understanding was that the members of the committee would be chosen by Mr. MacDonald and that they would begin their study without any predisposition on the tariff question, or on any other policy. Should a policy of protection be finally decided upon, it was said, the legislation would probably be submitted as soon after New Year as possible.

There was no suggestion as to whether any possible emergency legislation to cover the intervening period might take.

The prime minister continued today to be occupied with the task of selecting the cabinet ministers on whom he will rely in his fight to reestablish international confidence in Great Britain's stability and to put the country's economic house in order.

The principal place to be filled is the chancellor of the exchequer, which Philip Snowden will retire, probably to accept a peerage and to take his place in the house of lords.

Neville Chamberlain, Conservative and minister of health in the present cabinet, is looked upon as the most probable successor to Mr. Snowden. It was considered likely, however, that Snowden would continue as a member of the cabinet in another post where his advice and counsel would be available in the tasks ahead.

As a member of the house of lords precedent forbids his continuation in the exchequer post, even if his frail health would permit it. Money bills must arise in the house of commons and the chancellor of the exchequer must be on hand with the privilege of answering questions. To present the bills he must also be a member of the commons.

OPPOSES REDUCTION IN CITY BAND FUND

Appleton Trades and Labor Council Praises Military Musical Organization

Opposition to any reduction in the city appropriation for operation and maintenance of the 120th Field Artillery band is expressed in a resolution adopted last week by the Appleton Trades and Labor council.

The resolution reads in part: "Be it resolved that we, the Appleton Trades and Labor council, appreciating the importance of the municipal band to Appleton, from the standpoint of its being a most desirable source of public entertainment economically provided by the city, and furthermore as an example to other communities in the state and nation of our civic pride and civic accomplishment, and being desirous of preserving the efficiency and high standing of this public enterprise, the Appleton Trades and Labor council unanimously goes on record as opposed to any reduction at this time, of the necessary appropriation for the operation and maintenance of our municipal band."

DEFENSE RESTS IN BRITTON LIBEL SUIT

Portions of Two Books Read During Hearing at Toledo, Ohio

Toledo, Ohio—(P)—The defense rested today in the trial of the $50,000 libel suit of Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," against C. A. Klunk, Marlon, Ohio, local keeper.

The jury listened to the reading of Miss Britton's book by defense counsel. The book alleged President Warren G. Harding was the father of Miss Britton's daughter, Elizabeth Ann.

Reading by defense counsel from Miss Britton's book disclosed, her assertion that letters received by her from President Harding, while he was United States senator, were from one to sixty pages long. Also that he had characterized both his letters and those he received from the plaintiff as compared to nothing but "French love letters."

The senator had suggested, the book states, that all communications interchanged between them be destroyed.

Concern for her child, Elizabeth Ann, became the ruling element in the mother after the death of President Harding while she was on an European trip from which she hurried home upon learning of his death.

The book discussed, as read in court, the author's reluctance at first in telling the captain that she had a daughter and who was the father. The promised sum never was paid, the author said, and her divorce from the vessel master followed in a short time.

In the "answer to the President's Daughter," written by Joseph De Barthe, Marlon, Ohio, now deceased, as a defense of President Harding, and the offending book in the present case growing out of its alleged libelous contents, the assertion of Nan Britton that she had clandestine meetings with President Harding, in the White House, was disclosed in the ground of impossibility. Counsel read portions from the book.

DOCTORS HEAR TALK ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. William Middleton, associate professor of medicine at the University of Wisconsin, addressed the Outagamie County Medical association at Riverview sanatorium, Little Chute, Thursday evening. His subject was Pulmonary Tuberculosis. Dr. Gilman, of Wheeling, Va., a guest of Dr. Middleton, spoke briefly on meeting of medical association, comparing the eastern with the western.

The group endorsed the proposed amendment to the milk ordinance, providing that all herds from which raw milk is sold be given the contagious abortion test. A committee of two members, Dr. Carl Neidhold and Dr. E. L. Bolton, was appointed to appear at the public hearing on the amendment and speak in favor of its adoption.

B. J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, and Miss Mary Orbeson, city nurse, discussed the examination of school children. Dr. E. F. Mielke, Dr. V. J. White and Dr. George T. Hagner make up the committee in charge of arrangements for the examinations.

1,570 People Receive Aid Of Salvation Army

There were 1,570 people who were given relief by the Salvation Army corps here last month, according to a report of Captain H. L. Servais. There were 117 families aided by the army, with 419 persons in the various families.

The relief work among needy families of the city included the distribution of 782 garments, 18 pairs of shoes and 17 pieces of necessary furniture. Of the 46 people who made application for employment, 15 were placed on jobs located by the Salvation Army.

Transients who sought aid from the army during October totaled 955, Captain Servais says. This relief work included the serving of 312 meals, and distribution of 250 garments and shoes. Four hundred and sixteen transients used the beds in the dormitories of the new Salvation Army home on N. Morrison-st.

Captain Servais is making a plea for more folding cots for the dormitories of the army home. Some nights all the beds and cots are utilized, and it is necessary for some transients to sleep on the floor. He also is seeking two sewing machines on which army workers can renovate and mend old clothing for the needy.

Must Share Work

"The application of this principle in times such as these is to make those who are now fully employed would have to share that employment with others less fortunate. In many instances it would involve genuine hardship and sacrifice, but it is just that principle which every careful student recognizes must be applied to our problems in the matter of taxation."

"In the field we do not hesitate to say that the individual with net income must, in effect, share with those who are unable to provide for themselves. I am likewise aware that the application of such a principle to a complicated industrial and business machine involves many grave difficulties."

"But those difficulties, no matter how grave or complicated will be met, because the difficulties that are bound to result in our whole economic life if we do nothing."

FIXED TRUSTS OFFERING NEW SHARE SERIES

Many Take This Action as Sign That Stock Market Is Turning Upward

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—The fact that several fixed trusts have felt prompted within the last few days to offer to the public a new series of their shares may be a sign that the stock market is turning upward. It may be an accurate one, however, as the thing has been done before.

Fixed trusts, as a whole, have been quiet for several months. They have been among the major victims of a declining market. Those that were indirectly frowned upon by the New York stock exchange through omission from the preferred group receiving listing privileges have, in some cases, quietly folded up their tents and faded out of sight.
The large distributors of shares of the fixed character have been doing their time and waiting for that propitious moment when it seemed reasonable to expect a stabilization of the stock market, permitting the inauguration of another campaign for a public offering of their issues.

Naturally, prices at which these shares are put on the market differ greatly from those emitted in large volume during 1930 and in the early part of 1931. Since those good times there have been shrinkages of as much as 50 per cent in the unit of fixed trust shares put out at an average so much below that of 1929 that it looked like a "sure thing" to buy these stocks and profit exceedingly thereby.

Faced Several Difficulties

One of the newer inventions was a trust built up on the thesis that within two years of 1930 the market would have brought a doubling and trebling of the values of selected lists of low priced shares. The trust could then be liquidated with a handsome appreciation to the holders of its securities. This did not work out as had been anticipated, due to the persistency with which stock that in 1930, had already slumped 50 to 60 per cent, kept going on down the price toboggan.

Another difficulty the fixed trusts have faced has been with their income account. They all carefully selected stocks from the three major groups, namely railroads, industrials and public utilities. Believing that through a scientific diversification of their capital they could insure themselves and their clients against capital losses. Academically, this is one of the soundest of all investment principles. Practically, it has been upset by the universal character of the decline which has taken place and in which, from the highest to the lowest kinds of stocks and bonds, there has occurred a substantial depreciation.

Didn't Protect Trusts

This principle did not protect the fixed trust, any more than the general management trust, from losses of income when it became necessary for corporations to inaugurate a general practice of reducing or omitting dividends in order to protect their cash reserves and to keep their fixed charges inviolate.

A considerable number of 25 to 40 stock issues that appear in every fixed portfolio have now gone to a lower dividend basis. Some of them no longer yield a dollar to their holders. Consequently, not only has there been a shrinkage in the asset values of fixed trust shares, but reserves set up to meet rather arbitrary payments of dividends on

CITY OFFICIALS "MISS STEP" IT WILL BE REPLACED

City hall officials have given up. After weeks of trying to control the reflexes in their legs, have yielded to the yoke of the psychologists' "conditioned reflex" and ordered the replacement of the step into the storm shed at the front entrance of city hall. Try as they would, after years and years of stepping up from the porch to the vestibule, persons entering and leaving the city hall building have been unable to overcome the habit, now that the step is removed. After three weeks of continual stumbling, trying to step over the imaginary obstacle, the mayor decided this morning it would be sensible to return the floor of the vestibule to its old form.

TWIN WILLOW SCHOOL WILL STAGE PROGRAM

The pupils of Twin Willow school will give a Halloween program Friday evening. A program, games and songs will be presented by the students.

Dialogue recitations will be given by Cecelia Kohl, Raymond Kohl, Hildegarde Schallbach, Lorraine
Sturm, Leonard Beschta and Lucille Kohl. Regina O'Shea will give
"Halloween Spooks"; Edwin Hanson
"Plantation Ditty"; Wayne Hanson,
"When De Folks Is Gone"; Beatrice Beschta, "Halloween"; Helen Kohl,
"Halloween Eve." Songs will be given by school grades from the first through the sixth grades.

These shares have been exhausted and the distribution to shareholders has been smaller. It takes some time to put into effect the substitution in a fixed trust portfolio of a new dividend paying stock for one that has to be cast out of the portfolio when its dividend is omitted.

A condition characterized by the term "evaporation" has developed among some of the smaller fixed trusts, and there were scores of them promoted one and two years ago. This results where the sponsor for the trust no longer finds a market for additional shares and allows the shares outstanding to seek their own price level.

Falls Out Bid

In other words, he abandons all obligation and pulls out his bid. Under such circumstances the stock drops well below its liquidating value. Holders of the stock are approached and offered cash terms for their shares. These they accept in the belief they have been persuaded into a poor situation and are willing to get out of it if they can save a small part of their capital. These odd-lot purchases are built up into units of sufficient size to be presented to the trustees of the fixed trust and prescribed units of collateral released. This collateral is then sold in the market, with the result that eventually there is only a skeleton remaining of the original corporation.

The fixed trust came into being after the general investment trust had had its fling and had captured the imagination of the American public to the extent of about $4-000,000,000. It has been reckoned that subscriptions to fixed trust shares subsequently ran as high as $500,000,000 to $600,000,000. Some estimates are much larger. There has been considerable criticism of the percentage of profits made by distributors. In fact, the history of fixed trusts includes what is popularly known as the "racketeering period" when exorbitant "loading" charges were imposed. It is among those companies that put on the highest charges that the greatest amount of "evaporation" is now taking place.

"Razzberry" Stories Wilt Excess Official Dignity

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Recent "razzberry" books and magazine articles have wilted some of the excess dignity always found in this capital's official life. Nothing is more calculated to do that than the widespread circulation of some of the nicknames which inevitably attach themselves to certain more or less illustrious public servants.

For instance, everyone has heard now that Theodore G. Joslin, secretary to President Hoover, is nicknamed "Goose." And about "Wrong Kore" Harry Stinson, secretary of state, "Egg Charlie" Curtis, the vice president, and "Boob" MacNider, American minister to Canada.

Some of the other celebrities here are often known as Secretary of the Interior "Ichabod Crane" Wilbur, Chief Justice "Charles the Baptist"
Hughes, and Senators "Rowboat" Hale of Maine, "Babbling Broke-hart" of Iowa, "Sunny Jim" Watson of Indiana, "Sad Sam" Shortridge of California, "Banjo Jim" Davis of Pennsylvania, "Big Bill" Borah of Idaho and "Uncle George" Norris of Nebraska.

President Hoover has no set nickname. His friends and associates still call him "The Chief." His detractors often refer to him as "The Great Engineer" or "The Great Signatory Engineer," not without sarcasm. In ordinary conversation, with neither adulation nor malice, he is most often referred to simply as "Herbie."

Probably the next expose of the way things are here will deal with the ghost writers who produce speeches and magazine articles for public officials whose words are most in demand. From the president down and especially among the cabinet officers, it's a common custom to employ "ghosts."

Prepared speeches delivered in Congress are sometimes ghostwritten, but often not. Identities of the "ghosts" are usually kept concealed because public officials apparently prefer to leave the impression that they wrote their own speeches. Hence it would not be fair to mention the names of only a few "ghosts," some of whom might be fired. One "ghost" now writing inspirational speeches for a celebrity here who has to make

Lucas Speech
Executive director Robert H. Lu-

Committee got himself off a speech the other night in which he told the American people they could choose between Hoover and Lenin and Trotsky. In the prepared copy the speech asserted that Premier Laval of France, who is coming to

Mushroom Hunters Meet With Good Success Here

They know their mushrooms, and they know where and when to find them. Every morning for the last several weeks three or four men, armed with paper sacks, have scoured the park in the rear of the Congregational church, gathering the delicacies.
How can they tell them from toadstools? "Huh! No toadstool has a circlet around the stem, the fibred top, and a skin that peels upward."

After a week or so of searching mushroom-hungry eyes are trained so it spots practically every little gray-white huddle nestling in the browning grass.
The Congregational park is one of the best places in town for mushrooms. Once a ravine, the rubbish and dirt used as fill now provides a fertile bed for mushrooms.

One man reported three or four quarts of canned mushrooms having resulted from his daily, early morning trips to the park. Some of the pickers arrive as early as 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning.

"INHERENT RIGHT"

Gang leaders are still stunned by the roughness of the federal courts. Here is one institution, as Judge Wilkerson said, "that cannot be bargained with."

And Capone's bodyguard, D'Andrea, has been sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court because he dared to come into the federal court with a gun in his pocket although it was carefully concealed.

Oh, yes, the multitude cheers, the courts are exalted, and people sleep a little easier because the fangs of crime have been filed a bit.

But it might be good to inquire by what authority this court may sentence a man to jail for six months whose only offense was that he sat in court behind a defendant and carried a gun which was never exposed.

Yes; by what authority dares a court sentence a man to jail and call it "contempt of court"?

There isn't anything in the constitution that gives any such authority.

There isn't anything in an act of congress that gives any such authority. It comes back to that phrase that was bandied about in Wisconsin during the last session of the legislature, what the supreme court of Wisconsin called "the inherent right" to preserve itself and accomplish the purpose for which it was instituted.

Most constitutions merely create courts and declare that there is imposed upon them "the judicial power" of the commonwealth. Some legislatures fix the maximum punishment for contempt of court and satisfy themselves by describing the offense in very general terms; some pass no law concerning the subject. Suppose some tried to abolish the offense?

In sustaining this "inherent power" courts reason like this: they have been instituted by the people for certain purposes; if they let defendants glower or otherwise intimidate witnesses they fail in their purpose; if they permit mobs to run a courtroom, justice is defeated; if they permit lawyers even to overcharge clients, justice becomes an empty husk.

And so they say that when the constitution conferred upon them the "judicial power" of the commonwealth it meant not only to decide cases and see that people had fair trials before juries but likewise to make their judgments effective, otherwise they are worthless.

Is it, indeed, a violent stretch of authority for courts to prevent every act and thing, and particularly if done in its presence, aimed or naturally tending to obscure the rights of parties or in any manner preventing that fair, open and honest result for which they are primarily created?

Those men in the Wisconsin legislature who declared awhile ago they had heard enough about the inherent power of courts and denounced it as a usurpation of authority, should consider these other phases of it. Sometimes, it is true, judicial rules in individual cases may seem to smack of hardship, but judicial rules, like all other rules, must be tested, not only by their purpose but by their accomplishments, and not by the test of perfection but by the test of average.

So tested, the rule of the inherent right of courts to protect people all along the line from the commencement of a lawsuit to its finish is a just and indispensable rule, else justice becomes a byword and a reproach.

ROBBERY IN HUNGARY

Appropos of bank robberies, this country may look at a recent case from Hungary. Over in Budapest a few days ago Alexander Ondi, a native from Texas where he lived until about ten years ago, attempted to introduce American methods of banditry with disastrous results.

With a youthful companion he robbed a Hungarian bank on Monday, was given prompt trial and the following Friday was sentenced to be hanged. The execution took place two hours after sentence was pronounced.

Neither Ondi nor his companion, who received a lighter sentence because of his youth, killed anybody during this holdup, but in trying to escape they fired several shots at pursuing officers and so, under the Hungarian law, became liable to capital punishment.

There were no arguments for a new trial, no appeals or writs of error, no machinations of criminal lawyers to aid them in escaping the consequences of their act.

No one proposes to make our law as severe as the Hungarian one. That isn't necessary in order to get results.

But a law that isn't efficient or cannot become operative because clever criminals may easily escape capture, that first essential of all law enforcement, does not deserve respect and seldom secures obedience.

WALKING THE TIGHT ROPE

All political parties face an unusual and dangerous test upon the opening of congress in December, a trial that will demand all the wits and political strategy available in the conduct of political maneuvers, for success or failure now may determine a party's future standing for many years.

Possibly the Progressives occupy the most risky position of all.

Although least in number they have sufficient strength to organize the house of representatives, elect the speaker, determine the committees, and swing the vote upon crucial matters. Senator LaFollette has indicated that Progressive help can only be obtained by one of the major parties in return for an agreement concerning Progressive measures.

If Republican leaders display the shrewdness that might be expected of a Mark Hanna they will permit Democrats and Progressives to form a coalition. Then in case conditions do not improve they will have someone to blame or at least share the discredit for all misfortunes.

Both Democrats and Progressives must realize that in success is the terrible responsibility of leadership. With honor always comes exposure to attack. They will be passing from a condition of theory to one involving the hard rocks of practice. They will have to move from the easy chair of the critical reformer onto the hard bench of constructive responsibility.

There are certain of the Progressives like Senators LaFollette, Norris and Walsh who have the cleverness or intellect not to be crowded into a corner or outgeneraled. These men of course realize that when they leave the seats of the minority they are going out of a safe port to battle tides and storms over which the puny hands of men have never been able to gain complete ascendancy.

It is a great gamble for there is nothing apparent in a Democratic-Progressive coalition that appears any more likely than Republican measures to return us to better times. Even the Progressives have not as a unit backed the return of beer, the only thing on the industrial horizon that could make a substantial difference in depleting the long lines of unemployment and raising the ruinous prices of farm produce.

The Progressives may find, if they face really acute leadership in both major parties, that neither wants their help because each realizes the extreme danger of leadership under present conditions and would be glad to hand a probably losing venture to the other.

PROFESSOR BABCOCK

The Babcock test for separating and measuring the fat in milk is so much a part of the dairy industry that a generation of dairymen has taken its existence for granted and probably speculated little in its origin. Its inventor, Stephen H. Babcock, professor of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin, died July 2, at the age of eighty-seven. He gave the test to the world forty-four years ago, and although other simpler tests have been devised, his remains supreme as combining simplicity with accuracy in a degree realized by no other experimenter. The device became the main reliance of the dairy industry at a time when American public opinion began to demand milk in terms of its food value. The Pasteur treatment solved the preservation problem, and the Babcock test provided a measure of essential properties. Laws and ordinances governing the production, preparation and distribution of milk pay tribute to the contribution of these two scientists. The Babcock test has been rightly classed as one of the most substantial contributions to the dairy industry. Dr. Babcock was a true scientist. Only his work interested him. He gave it all he had of knowledge, initiative and energy. At the time of his death he was in the midst of experiments declared by his colleagues to have shown considerable promise of yielding a noteworthy contribution to the world's knowledge of the nature of energy. He worked in an atmosphere friendly to his desires, a fact which testifies to the breadth of service in research rendered by the state universities. His work was recognized during the course of his career, but his chief reward was the opportunity to labor long in a realm of science.—Indianapolis News

SOMEONE has stolen the little brown jug from Michigan... that's the football trophy which has been given to the winner of the Michigan-Minnesota game ever since 1903 but maybe it'll come back some day. It has nothing to do with the song of "Little Brown Jug how I love Thee" but several young men are willing to break ribs for it every year... which reminds us of a trophy which Minnesota took from Wisconsin one time... somehow the trophy has never been shown publicly... it is one of the gold goblets from the state capital building in Madison... maybe a committee is still investigating it...

Swatting at a fly who jumps from here to here to here may not accomplish much in the way of destruction, but think how uncomfortable the fly must feel.

Western conference officials have barred a University of Iowa-Ames football game for sweet charity's sake. Iowa and Ames bear something of the same relation to each other as Wisconsin-Marquette. The game was barred because conference tests theory are to play charity games, but only between themselves.

And so, at the risk of being called a gent who talks out of turn, we'll also offer a prediction that Wisconsin and Marquette will not play this fall despite all the politics and the faculty and the agents and the Milwaukee newspapers. Things are getting smaller and smaller about that game, and if it were played, there would be riots no end.

Los Angeles had a temperature of 93 the other day. Tsk, tsk, not Los Angeles—CALIFORNIA! It must be some other Los Angeles.

Maybe Los Angeles, Florida.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE TWO SPIRITS

In each of us two souls there are.
And one is weak and one is strong.
And day by day along life's way
All men are torn 'twixt right and wrong.
Temptation is a subtle thing.
With varying lures it leads us on.
All roads it fares to set its snares.
But right must travel only one.

Some sneer at those to drink a prey.
Yet they themselves are sore beset.
The bravest men and moments when Their finer instincts they forget.
For, tempted by the joy they crave
Of selfish gain or selfish pride,
They too, will race to what is base
And push the struggling right aside.

For money some do shameful things
Within the precincts of the law.
With no regard for bargains hard,
They'll fight for gain with tooth and claw.
Not all the failures to be fine
Are caused by one scarlet sin.
Men bitter grow; their power to show
And sometimes break their word to win.

The right must struggle 'gainst the odds,
Temptation strikes with subtle skill.
And if the conscience merely nods,
Man's baser nature works its will.
In each of us two spirits dwell
And one is dark and one is fair,
And man must fight for what is right,
Or wrong will catch him unaware.

GRINDING THE TEETH IN SLEEP

Sometimes children who grit or grind their teeth in sleep really have round worms (Ascaris lumbricoides). Drs. Keller, Casparis and Leathers recently studied 107 white children and 60 negro children, in whose feces ascaris eggs were found (by microscope), the eggs of worms being invisible to the naked eye and in no less than 32 per cent of the white patients and 25 per cent of the negro patients with round worms the doctors elicited a history of grinding or grinding the teeth in sleep.

This would probably be sufficient to convince any ignorant person that worms are the cause of grinding or grinding the teeth in sleep. But why is it that two thirds of the white children with worms and three fourths of the negro children with worms never "grind" their teeth in sleep, so far as their parents knew?

The doctors selected another list of children, 54 white and 63 negro children, in whose feces no worm eggs were found, which fairly proves they had no worms. But these children in Tennessee seem perverse and unreasonable. In eleven per cent of the white children without worms and in 18 per cent of the negro children without worms, the parents noticed grinding or grinding of the teeth in sleep.

At that, I'll bet a ray of intelligence against a bottle of Dr. Somebody's Unfailing Worm Solvent that the harpies in Tennessee are just as certain what grinding of the teeth spells as are the ignorant old women anywhere else.

One mother from Michigan that her grandson ground his teeth in sleep. She got a bottle of Old Dr. Somebody's Vanisher for Worms, and she actually saw little white specks in the feces which she claims were eggs from worms and the boy never again ground his teeth. The most remarkable eyewitness on record—she saw what ordinary folk require a microscope to see, if we can take her yarn seriously.

Another ignorant person writes anonymously that "my little sister ground her teeth in sleep and mother said it was worms and gave her 'Grandma Green's Notorious' powders"—formerly called "worm" powders—but how called "condition" powders—owing, perhaps, to cantankerousness on the part of faint authorities who thought it too raw lying on the label. This had "excellent results in a few days."

Whatever that may mean. At last analysis Grandmother Olive's humbug powders consisted largely of rhubarb and soda. Physic and alkali. Not bad for some of the trifling disturbances which busybodies and harpies so nonchalantly diagnose "worms" but not worth the pleasure if the child really has worms and the disturbance is actually caused by the worms.

I don't know what causes grinding of the teeth in sleep. A medical friend sends me his idea about it. He thinks it is often due to excessively acid urine and irritation of the urinary tract. Alkalis such as common soda should be given to decrease the acidity of the urine. The child should have less meat and more vegetables and fruits.

All the popular so-called "worm medicine" are not worth a hoot if worms are actually causing the trouble. Any worm medicine worth giving is too dangerous to be administered to a child unless under medical direction.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Substitute for Oranges

Is the vitamin content of grapefruit juice the same as that of orange juice? Does it alter the vitamin to let either juice stand several days before using? Does heat affect it? Can grapefruit juice be substituted for orange juice in the diet? (Mrs. A. J. W.)

Answer—Practically the same, though perhaps oranges contain a little more vitamin to the pound. Standing for something, or heating, tends to destroy vitamins. For some folks grapefruit or its terrible juice may be substituted for orange.

but I'd like to catch anybody trying to work such a lousy trick on me.

Any Medical College Will Do

(Composite of too many inquiries.) In your article on the treatment of exophthalmic goiter you told of the value of "scientific rest." I do not understand what scientific rest means. (A lot of obviously intelligent readers.)

Answer—Well, right in the same breath I explained that only a physician understands how to give a patient the benefit of scientific, physiologic, metabolic, therapeutic rest. If you feel you should understand it thoroughly you might try a course in some medical school.

Meat and Eggs

A few days ago we had meat for dinner. (Encouraging sign of returning prosperity.) Afterwards discovered that a blow fly had laid a number of eggs on the meat. In case we ate any, what would be the effect? What would be the best remedy, to discharge them? (L. C. B.)

Answer—No appreciable effect. Very little nourishment in such small eggs. No remedy necessary.

Laudanum

What are the late effects of the laudanum habit? Sister took it for seven years. She received treatment from our doctor and has not taken any for over six years. But her strange condition... she is now 62 years old... (Mrs. A. L. H.)

Answer—No characteristic indications a layman can recognize. Laudanum is the tincture of opium; morphine is the active principle of opium. Such addicts often deceive their physician and relatives, secretly taking the drug while pretending to be free from the craving. At your sister's age, however, why worry. Let her be.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

S AID Clowny, "Wait! I'll get some string and then we'll see a funny thing. A kitten loves to play until it's tied up in a knot." He ran into a nearby store and got what he wanted for the fun. Then Clowny took the kitten from the friendly little tot.

He spread the string out on the ground and started whirling it around. The kitten sneaked up slowly and then took one real long leap. "Look out!" cried Scouty. He will take a real good hold. The string will break. We'll shortly have him all tied out and then he'll want to sleep."

They soon found out his guess was right. The kitten raced with all its might and then ran up the small girl's dress and started in to purr. She held it close and Scouty said, "We must be moving on ahead." And so the girl said, "Good-by," and they tipped their hats to her.

"I'm just as thirsty as can be," cried Copy. "Who will come with me and find a place to get a drink?" "That's easy," answered one.

They saw a well-a-block or so back down this street. That's where we'll go. It has long-handled dippers. Drinking from them will be fun."

They reached the well and saw a sight that tickled every Tinymite. A woman with a baby on her back was standing near. "They come for water every day," explained the Travel Man. "And say, just watch the way she toted that jug when she is leaving here."

She filled her jug up to the top and didn't spill a single drop. And then she put it on her head, and started down the street. "She sure can balance," Carry said. "You'd think that that would hurt her

A Bystander In Washington

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington. Jack Garner the tousel-haired gentleman from Texas who is democratic leader of the house and a strong contender for the speakership, came in for a lot of good-natured banter when he barged into the capital in an airplane the other day.

His friends were waiting to "kid" him about getting in the way of that tree limb down in Uvalde recently. "Jack," boomed John McDuffie, the democratic whip and one of Garner's right hand men in the house, "a man who can't take care of himself any better than that certainly has no business being speaker of the house."

Garner took the ragging in good fashion, admitting that a man should be able to dodge anything as large as a green oak limb 10 inches in diameter.

However, he declined the Alabama's offer to permit his little daughter to accompany him back to Texas to take care of him in the future.

A Shot That Missed

Incidentally the democratic leader revealed another incident of that day which failed to get in the papers for some reason. He had started out that morning with a small rifle to do a little shooting. Spotting a squirrel in a tree right away, he cracked down. Almost instantly a shout came from the direction of his house. It was the voice of Mrs. Garner.

"Watch where you are shooting. You'll kill someone."

He had missed the squirrel and the shot had fallen on the house.

"The old proverb that 'An idle brain is the devil's workshop' popped in my mind," said Garner. "I thought I'd better get busy, so I put the rifle down and started helping a man who was trimming a tree. And then the danged limb had to fall on my hip."

Evidently the "Hon. Jack" is not as adept with rifle shots in Texas as he is with his political shots on the hill. Rarely indeed does he miss in the house of representatives.

Mrs. Garner His Aid

It was typical of Mrs. Garner to slip that note about the spirit of the Lord and watching over him in his pocket just before he took off for Washington in a plane.

The attachment Mr. and Mrs. Garner have for each other is known to all their friends in Washington. She serves in his office as a sort of major domo. And she gives a big kick out of her husband's activity on the hill as he does himself.

LOAN TO FRANCE

On Oct. 30, 1917, the United States advanced to France a loan of $10,000,000.

Italy forced a new cabinet, with Professor Vittorio Orlando as premier. With this, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo turned over to the Italian government on additional credit of $330,000,000.

Ledebour, Independent Socialist, speaking before the Reichstag, said: "We have 1,500,000 dead, 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 wounded, of whom 500,000 are crippled for life, and 2,000,000 absolutely invalided. That makes altogether 6,000,000 men lost during three years."

Fire destroyed $5,000,000 worth of war material on the water front at Baltimore, Md. This material was intended for General Pershing's troops in France.

The fire was declared to have been started by German spies.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—The harassed and scattered nobility of Russia has done much to make the world a sweeter place to live in. It would seem.

One prince, for instance, who is as delighted with his Georgian blood as some of the old kunnels of our own Georgia are with theirs, caters to the more elegantly lifted noses at his perfume here.

I chanced upon him at a tea (now don't pool pool me; they don't serve tea at those things any more). And I must say that the obliging prince shed considerable enlightenment upon the history of development of the royal Russian.

Certain of the nobles were quite expert at their hobby of creating individual perfumes for their particular friends. In fact, if the war had been fought with sashet instead of gunpowder, it is doubtful if any inferior ammunition ever could have found its way past those highly sensitive noses to the Austro-Hungarian front.

Now the prince has enlisted the Prince and Princess Vassily of Russia in his business. Vassily, in case you haven't met him, is a nephew of the last of the czars, a son of the Grand Duke Alexander.

The princess is a member of the once celebrated House Gaititis. (A family, not another perfume.) Last year the princely perfume had the cooperation of the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia in the creation of some of his products. My dear, one waft of their wares would send you into an ecstasy!

But alas! the duchess turned to her writing and left the prince to carry on.

Royal Intrigue

Since we're hobnobbing with nobility, I'll let you in on something else I picked up from another member of the royalist party (no, not that sort of party).

At "Sartevens," who wrote a book in which he professed to know that a vengeful "Eleonore, Princess Ravesta" was responsible for the murder of Franz Ferdinand at Sarajevo, is reported to have written to friends here that he believes his mysterious "Eleonore" is in New York.

At "Sartevens" claims to authenticity were given some credence in Paris, where his version of the tragic romantic issues precipitating the world war is going to be dramatized.

Therein lies the seed of suspicion regarding the spread of such rumors here. While it is silly hinted that M. "Sartevens" will come to America in search of his princess after the dramatization is staged, it is to be supposed that the eccentric author would not be averse to having a translation produced in the New York theater.

And he would like to have us practice pronouncing his name.

Slow Motion Pictures

Milton Berle, the master of ceremonies, is only 21. "Proving," he says, "that M. C.'s are born, not made."

Harry Novak, who represents a movie company at Cristobal Canal Zone, has been in town spinning some interesting yarns.

William Powell will tear himself away from the West coast for a visit to New York soon.

PUBLISH STUDIES WRITTEN HERE BY MUSIC TEACHER

"Warming Up Exercises" Is Work of E. C. Moore of Lawrence Conservatory

"Warming Up Exercises," a series of studies written directly for school bands as an aid to intonation, by Prof. E. C. Moore of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, supervisor of instrumental work in the public schools of Appleton, has recently been published by Carl Fischer Inc., New York. The publication has been enjoying phenomenal sale and has been receiving much acclaim from the musical world, in that nothing of this sort has ever been published before.

Professor Moore says in the preface to the series, "The exercises contained herein, while very short, are ample for the purpose intended. Each has been designed especially either to illustrate some difficulty, or to aid the pupil in acquiring more skill in reading and playing music." The series, before publication, was used for an entire year in the daily rehearsals of the Appleton High School band, of which Prof. Moore is director. Their success was so astonishing that it was decided to publish them.

The publication has been divided into three units. The first section consists of 24 exercises. "Designed to be used in drilling upon tone, intonation, and the major and minor keys." The second unit of 30 exercises is intended to be used in working for speed and relaxation of the fingers, and for control of the upper tones on all instruments. The third section consists of "twenty-six exercises intended to be used in drilling upon specific problems found in music itself," according to Professor Moore.

The series of exercises is expected to surpass in popularity even the previous publication of Professor Moore's, which consisted of a complete course in band work and which last year achieved a sale of over 129,000 copies.

In concluding the preface to the publication, Professor Moore says, "The judicious use of these exercises will aid immensely in making band work and band music increasingly more enjoyable. It is physically impossible to enjoy music that is out of tune or of poor tone quality. Anything which improves the tone and intonation of the band is sure to increase the satisfaction and pleasure, not only of the listeners but of the performers."

MANY WOMEN ENROLL IN SWIMMING CLASSES

Swimming classes for women, sponsored at the Y. M. C. A. by the Appleton Woman's club, have become so popular that eight women have already registered for the next term to begin the first week in January. An extra class at 8:30 Wednesday nights will be organized for women who have been turned away from the crowded day classes.

Ninety-three swimmers out of the 125 capacity enrollment attended classes Wednesday. Women interested in the new evening class may enroll with Mrs. R. N. Clapp at the Woman's club. The fee for the remaining lessons will be slightly less than the regular enrollment fee.

Appleton, Katherine Ditts and Hans Carl Buetow, Kaukauna and John Enrico, Black Creek.

EIGHT MERCHANDISE LINES REPORT GAINS

General Trend Better Than Year Ago, Manufacturers' Body Finds

New York—(AP)—Increased production in eight groups of merchandise during the current year as compared with 1930 has been reported in answers to a questionnaire sent out by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The answers to the questionnaire, which was sent to members of the association in 26 major industrial groups, were given out at the annual meeting of the manufacturers now in session at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Automobile accessories had a 14 per cent increase; chemicals 11 per cent; electrical goods 18 per cent; leather 27 per cent; paper and pulp 14 per cent; rubber 25 per cent; stationery and printing 9 per cent; textiles 17 per cent, and miscellaneous 9 per cent.

L. Lewis Benton, general secretary, quoted figures and percentages the general trend of which was toward better production and employment conditions among members of the association than a year ago. "Employment shows a slight improvement over this time last year," he said, "5 per cent of the reporting companies having increased their forces as against 3 per cent last year; 31 per cent have held their same personnel as against 29 per cent last year, and 64 per cent have reduced forces as against 68 per cent last year."

"Better business than last year was reported by 8 per cent of the companies as against 5 per cent last year; 13 per cent held the same business as against 14 per cent last year and 74 per cent showed a lower business level as against 50 per cent a year ago."

He said that in 54 per cent of the companies reporting wages had held their own or been slightly bettered. In the 45 per cent which were compelled to reduce wages the general average reduction had been 15 per cent.

FINED $100 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Kaukauna Man Is Arrested Following Crash at Green Bay

Edward Powers, Kaukauna, was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs of $12.20 for drunken driving when he was arraigned in police court at Green Bay yesterday before Judge George A. Arends. The car he was driving when arrested at Green Bay Wednesday night was owned by J. M. Smith, Oshkosh, who was a passenger at the time. Smith paid a fine of $10 and costs of $7.88 for being drunk.

It was charged that Powers failed to stop for an arterial sign at the corner of Mason and Broadway-its shortly before 10 o'clock Wednesday night and that as a result the machine crashed into a car driven by Harry Hendrickson, Green Bay. Hendrickson's car, in turn, was sent forward until it struck the car of Elmer Sorenson, route 3, Bellevue. The damage to the three machines was slight.

If Powers does not pay the fine he must spend 60 days in the Brown-co jail.

URGE HUNTERS TO BE MORE CAREFUL

Many accidents to hunters are the direct result of acts in violation of game laws, according to the Wisconsin Conservation commission. The commission issued a warning to hunters to exercise care in the use of weapons during the hunting season.

The commission listed seven "don'ts" which, if observed, would reduce accidents to a minimum. They are:

- "Don't keep your gun loaded except when you are actually hunting, but handle it at all times as if it were loaded;
- "Don't point your gun at anyone even if you are sure it is empty;
- "Don't handle a gun by the muzzle or pull it toward you;
- "Don't carry your gun when climbing fences or brush piles;
- "Don't carry your gun so that an accidental discharge might shoot your companion;
- "Don't shoot at any game unless you can see it clearly enough to positively identify it; and
- "Don't be the fool who didn't know it was loaded."

HIGHWAY COMMITTEE TO DISCUSS BUDGET

The county highway committee will hold a special meeting Monday afternoon at the courthouse, according to F. R. Appleton, highway commissioner to start discussions on the highway budget for 1932. The committee must have its report prepared for the county board when it meets on Nov. 10.

DROUGHT AND FIRE THREATEN SEWANE RIVER AND DISTRICT

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—The glamour of the Sewanee river is endangered. B. M. Lufburrow, Georgia state forester, says drought has affected its flow and that it is gradually drying up. Further than that, the beauty of the surroundings of the stream lauded in song and story, is imperilled by forest fires that are sweeping across extreme southern Georgia.

The forester said numerous creeks and wells in south Georgia already have gone dry as a result of the lack of rainfall.

Conference Of D. A. R. At Racine

THE thirty-fifth annual conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution opened Wednesday at Racine with a meeting of the state executive board. In the afternoon state chairmen and chapter regents held a meeting, following by a session at which Dudley Crafts Watson was the speaker.

An open meeting, which all interested were invited, was held Wednesday evening with Mrs. J. H. Martin, regent of the Racine chapter, presiding. Two piano solos were given by Miss Alice Magee, of the Carroll college faculty, greetings from Racine were extended by Dar Vriesman of the Association of Commerce, greetings were given from the two hostess chapters, Racine and Brskine-Perry-Sears, by Mrs. H. C. Lawton, general chairman, and the response was given by Mrs. W. H. Cudworth, Milwaukee, state vice regent. Other local patriotic organizations also extended greetings.

The convention proper opened Thursday morning with a processional in which state officers and pages participated. The address of the state regent, Mrs. Joseph Ackroyd Branson, DePere, was followed by the report of the credentials committee and roll call. Reports occupied the remainder of the morning, state chairmen, chapter regents, and state regents giving brief resumes of their work. An address on patriotic education by Miss Bonnie Farwell, Terre Haute, Ind., national vice chairman of patriotic education, also followed the morning session.

Luncheon at noon at the Hotel Racine was followed by an address at the Women's club by Mrs. Vincent Sisson, Winnetka, Ill., national vice chairman of national defense. A memorial service was held in honor of deceased members, and was followed by a drive about the city during which the delegates stopped at the Washington Park high school grounds where two memorial shrines were planted in observance of the George Washington bicentennial to be celebrated in 1932.

Mrs. George Ashman and Mrs. E. S. Torrey are representing Appleton chapter at the convention.

Give Girls Time To Use Playground

BY ANGELO PATRI

Whenever I pass a playground I count the number of girls at play there. Often there isn't one. The boys are playing ball, riding the swings, playing their games, but no girls are in sight. When I ask the boys where their sisters are they say, "Home."

I asked the girls what they did in the afternoons after school and they said, "Stay home. Help mother. Mind the baby. Study lessons." None of them said anything about play.

Girls need play as much as boys do. Indeed, if there is any margin to be allowed it ought to go to the girls. They need healthy bodies as much as boys do and one degree more. The degree that allows them strength and health for motherhood must be gathered in healthy outdoor play. Our girls do not get enough of it.

I know that there are Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, but the group that enjoys those activities is a small one compared with the great group of girls who sit at home from school and sit in the house. It seems to me that whenever a playground is built that provision, definite and complete, should be made for the girls. The boys always have their baseball diamonds, their handball courts, and free space for games. What do the girls have? Not nearly enough.

Mothers are afraid to have the girls out of their sight. If they knew that the girls were under supervision, that they were safe on the playground as they are in the classroom, they would be more willing to have them out of the house.

Girls ought to have their days at the swimming pools. Usually they have to take whatever time is left or do without altogether. Girls profit by swimming lessons, and by free swimming, just as much as the boys do. Every time I hear somebody make a speech about saving the boys, giving them better playgrounds and more of them, I feel like shouting out Amen, but save the girls too. Because girls are better citizens than the boys is scarcely a good reason for giving them less chance for play, less chance for healthy development of mind and body.

I am not saying we have done nothing for girls. I appreciate every effort that has been made, every good that has been accomplished. I am asking for more. Each playground for boys ought to be balanced by another for the girls. I don't believe they should share the same one for that means the girls are denoted of their share. Boys are not chivalrous. Girls are not aggressive. To get their share of the playground when the boys were in it they would have to fight for it. I want them to have their due without bargaining, without grudging.

Next time when the playground is being divided give the girls a chance. Go into the homes and persuade the mothers to let the girls play. We give playgrounds to children because they foster health, morality, good citizenship. The girls have a share in all that these represent. They carry their share of the burden of the city, and a bit more. Do give them a fair chance, and even start.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

It seemed to Sue that she had been away a long, long time. She had expected that the town would look different. But it was just the same. The car rolled past the building where the Thornton and Curtis firm had its offices. She had almost forgotten that it no longer read "Thornton, Curtis and Thornton."

Jack noticed it, too. Sue could tell by the grim set of his mouth, the stubborn angle of his chin.

Then they were turning the corner and were on the wide street where her own home was. Sue had telegraphed her parents immediately upon her marriage. They were home now, watching for her.

She scarcely waited for Jack, she was so eager to see them. She ran up the walk, opened the door, and had her arms around everyone. Harry and Corinne were there, too. Ted and Sarah. Grace and Jimmy.

She went back to the door and pulled Jack along.

Sue could see the dining room table beyond, the gleam of silver and glass, the roses in a low bowl. She ran upstairs to slip into another dress, and the girls came along.

"There's a woman who has been here to see you twice today," Sarah said. Sue wondered how Sarah knew. Then she remembered that Sarah and Ted were living here now until they found an apartment of their own.

"She said she would be back. She seemed upset about something. I want to see you real badly."

"I don't know who it could be," Sue mused. "Unless..."

"Sue's a good friend of yours for some reason or other, but she knows something she wants you to know," Sarah went on talking during her horse with a cotton ball. "Do you know anything about a will?"

"A will? Oh, yes," Sue didn't explain. She didn't have time and it was much too complicated anyway.

"She is quite upset about something. Seems to think that you and Jack are some sort of guardian angels," Sarah talked on.

"Haven't I better tell Jack that she's coming?" Sue asked, and hurried out of the room. As she walked down the steps she kept wishing that she had never gone to the house where the will was. Still, it had helped Jack, after all. Only it had brought about much unpleasantness. She hadn't heard the doorbell ring. She wasn't expecting to see the woman of the will talking to Jack in the lower hall.

"My husband left me," she told Sue, beginning abruptly. "I've been turned out. I want a divorce. And I thought maybe you could help me get a job. They're scarce."

"You'll have some money... your share from the tangle when it's straightened out... it did come in, you know... but you'll have to wait a little while. Until then..." Jack was saying.

Corinne's face had been appearing and disappearing in the doorway. She had followed Sue downstairs. And now Sue remembered that Corinne had always been curious, had always scented any mystery in the air. She motioned to Sue.

"If you really want to give that woman a job, and she can do housework, I'll take her. I need someone."

"You're sure?" Sue turned and called Jack.

HERE'S LATEST IN ROCKET DESIGN

Canabuck, Germany — Many are the types of rockets devised in this country, the chief experimenter in this line of propulsion. The latest is a type of rocket glider.

The rocket model has wings and is placed in a starting position with its wings folded back close to the fuselage so that resistance is reduced to a minimum during its upward flight.

When the peak of its upward momentum is reached, the wings of the rocket automatically extend outward and adjust themselves to glider position. From this time on the model glides down along a normal gliding path just like an ordinary glider.

Side Closing

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON

Here's a clever little frock favoring the smart idea of contrast so popular with the grown-ups this season. It can be long or short sleeves, just as you please.

A wrap-over side-closing effect makes it so individual.

Two shades of wool crepe is an excellent scheme for its development. Its inspirator combined a light navy blue with pale blue, so thoroughly French.

It's darling dress too for "dress-up" occasions fashioned of brown velvet with pastel-red crepe silk contrast.

Style No. 3272 may be had in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Sizes 8 requires 12 yards of 28-inch material with 1 yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Another cute idea is green tweed mixture with yellow plain woolen.

It may be made of one material, if desired.

FALL IS TIME FOR WOMAN TO EXPRESS SELF

BY ALICIA HART

Most women like autumn and winter a great deal more than they do spring and summer. They look and feel smarter in the gay-colored sheer woolen dresses for sports, street and office wear than in the prints, silks and chiffons of summer.

Evening dresses of soft chiffon velvet and satin are much more flattering than the wispy chiffon prints of summer. It's exciting and exhilarating to replenish the wardrobe with fall and winter clothes, and one takes more interest and going to the dressmaker's.

The makeup and cosmetic supply will have to be replenished, too. You need more creams, fewer astringents, less rouge and more lipstick.

Winter dries your skin more than summer. Each time you come in out of the cool (it may even be cold) air, cleanse your face with cream and then don't make it up again immediately. Give it a chance to breathe.

Unless your skin is naturally extremely oily, you won't need to use an astringent more than two or three times a week during the cold months.

In summer, when your face is inclined to be slightly damp most of the time, rouge quickly disappears. Hence, you apply it oftener and more generously.

A coat of tan looked smart in contrast to the white and pastel shades you wore at the resort but it won't look smart at all if you show up at a formal dinner with arms and shoulders that aren't white and smooth to complement your new velvet evening gown. Use a bleaching cream until your skin is creamy, soft and white once again. Remember that liquid powder is fine for your back and shoulders. It won't rub off while you are dancing.

You can give your nails more fastidious attention. Golf, sand on the beach, riding and innumerable other things probably made your nails a little rough and dingy. Keep a half of a lemon over your sink or in the bathroom shelf and rub your nails into it three or four times a day. It doesn't take but a few seconds and you'll be surprised what it will do towards bleaching your fingers and nails.

You can probably wear a more vivid shade of polish now—not scarlet, please—and perhaps you will want to wear your nails a trifle longer, too. Be as ravishing as you choose. Winter is the time to "express yourself."

Though marriages in Iowa dropped 5.9 per cent in 1930 and divorces decreased only 1.9, there still were 4.8 marriages to each divorce.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

ON HER FIANCE'S OLD FRIENDS—DON'T TRY TO BREAK UP LOYAL FRIENDS FROM BOYHOOD ON

Dear Miss Vane: Some time ago you wrote an article in which you said that when considering your future husband, it was wise to see what his friends were like—since no man would choose for his friends people unsuited to his taste and temperament in every way, and therefore such friends as he had would be a pretty good indication to his character, taste, etc. Now I am in a quandary because although my fiancé and I belong to the same crowd, and have many mutual friends, still his two closest pals are two men I can't bear. Both of them have rough manners, and no sign of education. They never read, they never talk about anything but the weather—they want to play cards all the time. Yet my fiancé will not cut them out for me. He has known them both for twenty years and it seems to me he is showing pretty bad taste in sticking to them. Don't you think so?

VAL.

If the two objectionable friends were recent additions to your fiancé's group of friends, you'd have a good deal more to worry about. They are your fiancé's certain makes new friends because he finds them congenial, sympathetic to him. And if he found some strange kinship with men such as you describe, you'd have cause to wonder.

But actually these two close pals of his date back some twenty years. And twenty years ago he didn't make friends for the same reasons he'd have today. They were boyhood companions, and perhaps through the years, a strong loyalty has grown up for them—a loyalty which ignores the difference in taste and temperament.

You have no way of knowing what has strengthened that loyalty. A hundred acts of friendly help—a hundred times you couldn't trace may have gone to make the friendship enduring and solid—so that today even though your fiancé may find them far from ideal companions or truly congenial souls, he never allows his critical judgment to work on them for they are his friends and nothing can change their place in his life.

There's something very admirable about this kind of loyalty and you mustn't attempt to spoil it. You'll suffer if you do.

On the whole you and your future husband like the same kind of people. You have the same kind of friends. Therefore you can be fairly certain that you and he are the same kind of people and that his taste generally suits yours. And for the friendship you can't figure out—just don't try to understand them, or change them. They're part of his life before he met you and their place in his life is assured and definite. Better be tactful and leave them untouched.

Begin Preparing Now For Independence

T. S. F.: Poor child there isn't anything you can do. I'm afraid to change your present position. If the head of the house rules that you shall be treated like a child of fourteen, then you'll have to take his orders—particularly as your mother is not competent to deal with the situation.

The only hope for you is to grow up as soon as possible, and make yourself financially a somebody in the family. You'll make yourself miserable staying home thinking about all the fun you should be having—and you'd much better get yourself any sort of work to start with so that you'll have something to occupy your mind.

There's a long hard road ahead of you but surely it's better to start traveling as soon as possible. You've got to make something of your life. You must have a chance to make friends and to keep them. And unfortunately you can't lead a normal everyday existence until you're earning your own money, and feel-

RENEW BRIGADE WORK ON MONDAY

All Members to Meet at 7 O'clock in Evening at Wesley Hall

Neenah—The thirty-second consecutive year of Brigade work at Neenah will officially open next Monday evening when all members, old and new, will meet at 7 o'clock at Wesley hall to begin the season's activities. A record membership is expected when approximately 130 old brigadiers will report to Capt. Leo Schubart and assistants for registration. DISCUSS INFERIOR COURT THAT BOARD MIGHT ESTABLISH

Laws Pertaining to Municipal Unit for Twin Cities Studied

Neenah—Twin city county board members met informally Thursday with Simon Horowitz, assistant district attorney, at the local office of District Attorney Frank Keefe, to discuss the municipal court question for the twin cities should the proposition ever arise again. The meeting was suggested by the district attorney to discuss an inferior court which the county board might establish. No action will be taken at the November board meeting.

Section 264 of the laws of 1923, was read, which provides that a board having power thereafter to rescind or abolish the same and to determine the place for the judge to hold office and provide suitable quarters. The law further provides for the election of the judge at the first Tuesday in April following the adoption of the resolution. Any candidate for the judgeship must be an attorney of record and voted upon by the people of the entire county. Such judge is to hold office from the first Monday in June following his election.

Such court, the law provides, could hear, try and determine crime and misdemeanor cases except those punishable by commitment to the state prison; also civil actions involving not to exceed $500.

Actions pertaining to foreclosures, liens of like amount, and trying all offenses arising under the ordinances of the cities.

The judge shall be ex-officio, court commissioner, and have all power conferred upon the justice of the peace; appeals to go to Municipal court in the same manner as from the justice of the peace. Jury trials can be held as in justice of the peace.

Salaries are fixed by the board which also has the power to give to the judge all fees of his office. In event such a court should be established here within the next few years, it is possible the judge would be placed entirely upon a fee basis until the court is proved itself.

If a court was established the citizens of Neenah and Menasha could enter into contract with the county board in regard to court expenses.

Those present at the meeting were Attorney Simon Horowitz, representing District Attorney F. B. Keefe, Supervisor Gustav Kalafas, Henry Schultz, J. P. Ebbesen, and Charles Korotek of Neenah, and Edward Sonnenberg, R. Fahrbach, R. Heckner, L. Kalaczinski and J. Mohr of Menasha.

LITTLE CHUTE TEAM TO PLAY AT MENASHA

Menasha—The St. Mary high school football team Friday was to complete preparations for a clash with the St. John high school eleven of Little Chute at the city hall park here Sunday afternoon. Because the teams met in a conference tilt several weeks ago, Sunday's game will have no effect on league standings. Traditional rivalry exists between the schools however, and a hard fought battle is expected.

The Menasha team defeated the St. John eleven, 6 to 2, in a tilt at Little Chute a few weeks ago. Except for the Menasha game however, the St. John team is undefeated and stiff practice sessions, in preparation for Sunday's battle, have been directed by Coach Clifford Distis here during the past few days.

HIGHS READY FOR STURGEON BAY TLT

Menasha Team to Defend Position at Head of Northeastern League

Menasha—After four days of intensive drill, the Menasha high school griders are ready to meet the Sturgeon Bay eleven in what promises to be one of the outstanding battles of Northeastern Wisconsin league play at Butte des Morts field Friday evening. The Caldermen are defending undisputed first place in loop standings.

All light drill in pass defense and signals and a "kick" featured the final Menasha rehearsal Thursday afternoon. Although the Blues are undefeated in league competition this season, the invading eleven will outweigh the Menasha aggregation and all possible preparations to meet a hard line smashing attack have been made during the past week.

The game will be the final home appearance scheduled by the Caldermen this season and a capacity crowd is expected. The high school band is expected to appear, and refreshments will be served by the band mothers' club between halves.

The starting lineup, announced by Coach Nathan Calder today, includes Liebi and Rammel at ends, Michalkiewicz and Marx at tackles, Makofski and Beattie at guards, and Arndt in the pivot position. Amus will start in the quarterback position with Novakofski and Massey at halves and Stachowicz at full back.

Card parties at Menasha auditorium Thursday afternoon. Similar parties will be given by the organization each Sunday afternoon for several weeks.

HOOVER REPLIES TO NAVY LEAGUE CHIEF'S ATTACK

With spectacular suddenness the president last night issued a formal reply, declaring the claims of William H. Gardiner, president of the Navy League, to be "untruths and distortions of fact."

Even as Mr. Hoover was answering this attack, his administration's affirmative reply to a league of nations proposal for a one-year naval building truce participated in by 52 nations was enroute to Geneva.

Recalls Shearer Attack

The severity and suddenness of the president's move recalled his almost similar action of two years. Then, without warning, he struck at William B. Shearer, who claimed he had helped wreck the unsuccessful Geneva arms conference of 1927.

He called Shearer a "propagandist" who had "organized zealous support for increased armaments and criticized 'all efforts of our government to secure international agreements for the reduction of naval arms.'"

Shearer came before a senate committee.

The president let it be known some weeks ago he would go directly to the American people, if necessary, to combat efforts to arouse public opinion in favor of increased naval expenditure.

He was represented then as indignant at supposed efforts of navy department personnel to block budgetary decreases he was advocating.

Since that time the navy has submitted new 1933 budget estimates showing approximately $61,000,000 from its previous $401,000,000 figures.

Throughout yesterday officials said the president had "no comment to make" upon Gardiner's statement. Then, after darkness had fallen, newspapermen were called suddenly back to the White House.

Would Publish Facts

"It is desirable," Mr. Hoover's statement said, "for the public to know the character of this indirect campaign of misinformation to defeat the efforts of the high officials of the navy department and the administration for reduction of federal expenditure not immediately essential in order that we may avoid increased taxation of the people in these times."

He did not, however, specify what part or parts of Gardiner's statement he considered "untruths and distortions of fact."

Here are some of the assertions made in the navy league pamphlet:

The president was charged with exhibiting an "abysmal ignorance of why navies are maintained and of how they are used to accomplish their major mission."

A proposal by him to immunize sea-borne food supplies during time of war was attacked as making for "bigger and bloodier wars."

The president and Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, during their conversations in 1929 were said to have "reached agreements that he never officially been divulged in his entirety."

The administration was seen as possibly inspiring the plan of Foreign Minister Grandoli of Italy, for a one year armament holiday.

Acceptance of the Grandoli proposal, it was said, would widen the ratio of the American, British and Japanese fleets to 10-14-17-11.9 as against London treaty proportions of 10-10-7-5.8.

The Navy League declared its pamphlet was necessary to "a real appreciation of the impelling motives back of President Hoover's efforts at every turn to restrict, to reduce and to starve the United States navy—under the present plea of budget limitation on which we may have further cause to comment."

In answering the league of nations invitation to participate in the armaments holiday, state department officials said the actual text of the message was short. In itself, this was taken to mean that the United States acceptance was not hedged about with exceptions and reservations.

Officials indicated the holiday would not apply to vessels now under construction, but only additional armament. The league plan would become effective Sunday.

Before definite commitments are made, however, each nation will be acquainted with the measure of agreement which has been reached as to exact extent of the holiday.

Referring to this proposal, the Navy League's pamphlet contended it would enhance "British and Japanese interests to the prejudice of analogous interests of the United States although the responsibility of the president is primarily to and for the United States."

The president's reply said the committee to be appointed would sit as an agency before which various arms of the government could demonstrate fallacies in the navy league's claims.

EXHIBIT AT LIBRARY ENCOURAGES PEACE

An exhibit encouraging disarmament and peace has been placed in the main room of the Appleton public library by Dr. H. E. Peabody, who received the display from the National Council for the Prevention of War, Washington, D. C.

The poster display points out the dependence of nations upon each other for raw products, brought on by the growth of industry; the bank system of international connections necessitated by the large demands for money for machine industry and the exploration and development of new lands; the world system of exchange which has resulted from industrial development; more rapid communication—the telegraph, telephone, cable, radio, railway, steamship, automobile and airplane; international conventions of the professional men of the world; international groups and societies, and the League of Nations.

U. S. FISH BUREAU PROBES ABNORMAL SARDINE HERRING

Schools Are Unsatisfactory in Maine Ports, Report Indicates

Eastport, Me., — The sardine herring "ain't what she used to be."

And the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries the Federal Food and Drug Administration, and the Maine State Division of Food Inspection have been trying for a year to find out why.

The vast sardine herring schools of the North Atlantic are behaving badly.

Normally, a peculiarity of herring is that different sized fish school by themselves. Those of very small size might be abundant at one point, while no more than a handful might be found at another.

But for more than a year now they have been decidedly abnormal. This fall the schools are all mixed up. Big herring, little herring and medium-sized herring are all jumbled together in the weirs, making it very difficult to handle them commercially because of the labor in sorting the different grades.

Moreover, a large percentage of the schools are in unsatisfactory condition. They are either too fat or not fat enough, too big or too little, too soft or too hard. All this is exerting a most depressing influence on the Maine sardine industry.

Season Shortened

In Maine the legal season opens April 15 and ends Dec. 1. This year the period of actual packing will be the shortest since the industry had its inception some 60 years ago here in Eastport. Instead of 3,000,000 cases of sardines, 100 cases to a case, a total of Maine coast sardines reached upon several occasions, the prediction is that this year's pack will not exceed 1,000,000 cases, and probably will not go over 800,000.

It was mid-August before a single one of the 40 Maine sardine factories was permitted to take fish. Some packers considered it so late that they made no attempt to open. Others are trying to get at least a part of their customary quota through a short intensive season of activity.

But state and federal inspectors are located in every factory and only fish that are absolutely suitable are permitted to reach the cans.

Industry Hard Hit

Because so many boatloads of herring are being rejected, due to unsuitable size and condition, and because so much culling is necessary, packers have been obliged to reduce wages and to pay boatmen only for such fish as they use. Little money will be made in the business this year.

The great Passamaquoddy Bay region is particularly hard hit. For more than half a century the great bulk of the business centered here. The sardine industry was the one and only means of livelihood for hundreds upon hundreds of families on both the American and the Canadian shores. The markets were practically all at Eastport and Lubec.

The entire Quoddy region has for 60 years had but one topic of interest—sardines! They got practically 10 months steady employment and made big money.

Such radical changes have come about in the industry during the past few years that the industrial conditions around the shores of Passamaquoddy are at the lowest ebb they have ever been.

Instead of 10 months work the industry now provides only three or four at the most.

Each year the eastern Maine fishermen have been finding it harder and harder to exist. They know no other occupation than that furnished by the sardine industry. Somehow they cannot seem to turn their hands to anything else. It has been hard enough for them to live on three or four months work. This year they will be fortunate if they are busy two months, and with wages and prices for fish the lowest ever.

Hunted After Armed Prison Break

A search throughout the eastern part of the United States was being conducted for these men after they had made their escape from the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton during an outbreak resulting in the deaths of two other convicts and a policeman, and the wounding of a guard. WUSSOW ACQUITTED OF GRAND LARCENY CHARGE AT CHILTON

Herman Schmidt Not Guilty in Assault and Battery Case, Jury Rules

Chilton — Dewey Wussow, charged with grand larceny, was found not guilty in circuit court this week. It was alleged that on June 7, he stole a Walterbilt containing $230 from Anton Hammer of Chilton, the alleged theft having taken place in New Holstein. Later $165 of the money was found on the person of Wussow and returned to Hammer. Wussow denied having taken the money and pleaded drunkenness as a defendant. He was represented by Attorney Edward Hibbard of Milwaukee.

Herman Schmidt also won a verdict of not guilty in circuit court. His case was an appeal from the justice court action in which Schmidt was found guilty on a charge of assault and battery on the person of Loretta Schwab. On Sept. 9 E. Reisinger, father of Mrs. Schwab, with Mrs. Reisinger their sons, daughters and son-in-law came to the Schmidt premises with the intention of taking possession of five hogs which the Reisingers claimed under a chattel mortgage sale. In his instructions to the jury, Circuit Judge Fred Beglinger stated that the hogs were the property of Mr. Schmidt and that the Reisingers had no right on the property after they had been ordered by Schmidt to leave, and that they had no right to take the hogs without Schmidt's permission.

The jury returned a verdict in favor of Arthur Schneider in an action against Peter Hanson and Emma Hanson on a promissory note of $600 which the defendants claimed was outlawed. Testimony for the plaintiff showed that during 1930 a $20 payment had been made by Hanson to apply on the note, thus renewing it. The jury returned a verdict in favor of Schneider in the amount of the note and interest.

Make Rapid Progress In Loading Of Sugar Beets

Special to Post-Crescent
Forest Junction — Carloads of sugar beets loaded here for the Menominee Sugar company of Green Bay have averaged between two and three per cent for 14 working days since the opening of shipping on Oct. 8. Thirty-six cars averaging 44 tons each had been loaded Thursday, when for the second time this season shipments were halted on account of an over supply at the factory. It is expected that from 15 to 20 carloads more will complete the harvest.

A power loader of the conveyor type, which is being used here this year for the first time, handles a 4-ton load in about ten minutes. But with the railroad siding where the loader is located only large enough to accommodate three freight cars, and freight service from here to Green Bay only every other day, numerous shippers are obliged to shovel the beets from their wagons by hand.

There are 32 growers loading their product here from an approximate total acreage of 275. Incomplete estimates place the average yield at about 10 tons per acre. One of the highest yields has been at the Reuben Ott farm, where six acres yielded 88 tons.

Open Detour

Preparatory to the construction of an overhead crossing carrying Highway 10 across the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad about 1,200 feet north of the railroad junction in this village, John Gills, Calumet-co highway commissioner, Wednesday notified land owners concerned of the intention of the county highway department to open a detour next week to permit the passage of traffic during the overhead construction.

A new road will be built for the detour immediately south of the viaduct construction. It crosses lands of Arthur Schnell, L. A. Otto, and Layman Stanelle, and the Milwaukee road track. After the viaduct is completed, it will again be removed. A recent attempt of the town of Brillion to have a detour constructed which could remain as a permanent town road leading into Forest Junction from the eastern foot of the proposed viaduct, was frustrated when the state public service commission refused to grant a new crossing over the North Western track in the village which that course involved.

The contract for the viaduct, which had been awarded this summer to Simpson and Parker, Appleton, was relet this week to make provision for winter work.

Writer Says Hoover Opposed Separate U. S. Army In War

New York (AP)—Colonel Frederick Palmer's book, "Newton D. Baker—America at War," which is published today, portrays Herbert Hoover in 1917 as opposing a separate American army in France. Mr. Hoover's idea, according to Palmer, was to use American troops as "manpower" within the ranks of the allies.

Colonel Palmer writes that Mr. Hoover's army organization views were made in a letter written Feb. 13, 1917, to Colonel E. M. House, President Wilson's confidential advisor. In the letter Mr. Hoover suggests that "if the government gave stimulus by provision of pensions, etc., a large body of men could be recruited and sent simply as man power to France."

Mr. Hoover believed this plan more feasible, Palmer writes, than the long training which would be necessary in the organization of an American expeditionary force and in view of the fact that a large American army in France would have "political difficulties in association."

"At the same time," Colonel Palmer states, "Hoover thought we ought to have strong military forces in being at the end of the war to strengthen our hands at the peace negotiations, since our proposals might be in conflict with European proposals."

Col. Palmer states that Col. House apparently favored Mr. Hoover's plan.

In outlining reasons why the plan was not accepted by the United States, the writer terms Mr. Hoover's idea as one "fatal to our efficiency and to the very cause of the allies."

General Pershing is shown by Col. Palmer to have overestimated by sixty divisions the number of American troops needed to win the war.

In an account of a conversation between the writer and General Pershing, Foch at the allied front, the French leader is quoted as telling Baker that 40 and not Pershing's estimate of 100 American divisions would be needed in France.

Mr. Baker is pictured as an effective and able chief of the war department in Colonel Palmer's work, which follows the secretary through the five years of his official life.

STUDIES LAW IN CELL AND WINS OWN CASE

Prisoner Acquitted of Charges of Defrauding U. S. Government

New York (AP)—George Graham Rice came back to his cell at Alcatraz penitentiary now with prospects much brighter for a parole— all because he did some law studying on his own initiative.

Rice, a 61 year old stock promoter, mine operator and financial writer, was acquitted last night of charges of defrauding the government of $1,500,000 in income taxes in 1925.

He acted as his own lawyer, employing knowledge gained from volumes of Blackstones studied at Atlanta penitentiary—where he is serving a four-year sentence on a mail fraud conviction.

"I am too poor to hire counsel," he told the court.

Rice broke into tears as the foreman of the jury declared him not guilty. His young wife, Kathryn Rice, whom he married 11 years ago embraced him.

He was taken to the federal detention prison for the night and will start back for Atlanta at once to save the balance of his sentence.

Rice hopes, however, to leave Atlanta on parole. He discovered he was eligible for parole, but for the income charges, and therefore arranged with the government to come to New York to fight the charge.

Rice's defense on the income tax evasion was that the income was carried on the books of two corporations he controlled and not in the name of George Graham Rice.

HERE IS REGULATION ON CHRISTMAS SEALS

Word has been received by Emery A. Grounck, postmaster here, from the federal postal department regarding the use of Christmas seals and stamps to be placed on mail intended for delivery in foreign countries. The message points out that the use of such stamps is not prohibited when they are placed on the back of an envelope but to place them on the front or address side of a piece of mail would cause the piece to be undeliverable.

Lightnin' Bill Jones

REMEMBER the line in the lovely play, LIGHTNIN', when Bill Jones received his pension-check from the Government? "See all them names on there—Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of War, and so on? This check ain't any good unless I sign it!" said Bill with an air of importance.

And he was right. Without his little endorsement, the check was a mere scrap of paper.

BRITISH CREDIT IS BOLSTERED AS VOTE RESULT

Election Expected to Help Assure Economic Stability of Europe

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington.—Although a British election is an internal affair and as such not subject to formal comment by officialdom, there was no mistaking the interpretation placed upon the result by the American government. It is taken to mean financial stability and an assurance that the credits recently extended by American banks to Britain will be repaid when due.

There is of course the expectation that the British pound sterling will be stabilized much sooner, now that Britain has cleared up the clouds of doubt that overhung the whole situation ever since Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald was repudiated by his Labor following. It had been feared here that the calling of a general election would mean chaotic conditions and dissension and that the national government would barely survive the ordeal. Now that such an overwhelming victory has been won by the national parties, official Washington looks at the future of Europe with more comfort and assurance. If the drastic measures taken by England represent a form of economic dictatorship, it will now be continued with even more firmness. This will have a profound effect on British credit throughout the world.

There are indications, for instance, that the credit due on Nov. 1, which the Bank of England obtained from the Federal Reserve bank of New York for $125,000,000 will be extended for another 90 days if Britain desires it.

Tariff Uncertain Issue

A rise in British pound sterling is going to be the aim of the new British regime and every improvement is bound to be reflected officially here believe, in a betterment of American foreign trade. The one uncertain factor is what the new British government may do about the tariff. The large number of Conservatives elected makes inevitable a division on the tariff issue, some of them favoring free trade and others a protective tariff. Any protective tariff would be bound to affect American trade adversely.

The question of whether the new members elected to parliament were given a mandate to change the tariff of merely to uphold the coalition rule of Prime Minister MacDonald, who has not been heretofore in favor of a tariff, remains to be decided and there may be an opportunity for a vote of confidence on that issue, for it is assumed here that the national government will first try to bolster up its credit and improve its balance of trade as an initial step in financial rehabilitation. This would bring the tariff issue to the front almost immediately.

Some congressional leaders here could not help seeing portents of American politics in the British trend. They thought they observed a conservative tendency on the part of the workmen which, if translated into American terms, would favor a continuation of Republican rule. In position to this, however, was the comment of some Democrats that the British really repudiated the party in power when Mr. MacDonald consented to head the national government and that the election augurs ill for the incumbent party in America.

POSTMASTER WARNS AGAINST DAMAGING OF CITY MAIL BOXES

Warnings are being issued by Postmaster Emery Greunke, against the damaging of mail boxes at various street intersections and at homes.

"Postal laws provide that anyone who shall willfully or maliciously injure, tear down or destroy a letter box or other receptacle intended or used for the receipt of mail shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than three years."

STOCK MARKET DISPLAYS FIRM TONE IN TRADE

Share Unable to Sustain Morning Rally — Currency Cut Encouraging

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York — (AP) — The securities markets displayed a firm undertone today, but shares were unable to sustain a morning rally.

Wall Street regarded the drop of 24,000,000 in the volume of currency in circulation as the most encouraging news in weeks, providing tangible evidence of a return of confidence in banks. A better demand for bank investments was apparent in the bond market.

The stock market pushed up about 4 points during the morning, but its advance was virtually cancelled after midday. Pivotal shares generally stiffened around 11 a. m. as the final results of the election were awaited.

Lightly traded, however, the market was not without interest, being 3 points heavier than the previous day. The market was not without interest, being 3 points heavier than the previous day. The market was not without interest, being 3 points heavier than the previous day.

The decline in currency in circulation was the first since the war. It was prompted by England's suspension of the gold standard. The normal comment of one leading banker, noted for his conservatism, was "the worst is over."

Maintenance of the 50-cent common dividend by Bethlehem Steel, following similar action by U. S. Steel two days previously, was also interpreted favorably. Belief that the steel industry may have a belated autumn recovery was bolstered by a statement by a General Motors official that the motor industry had touched bottom three months ago.

A reduction in the minimum wage scale to $6 daily from $7 by Ford Motor Co. was favorably received by those interests in Wall Street who held that belated deflation of wages had delayed recovery. It was reported that motor equipment and accessory manufacturers supplying the industry would probably be in a similar position.

Wall Street continued to discuss railway wages. The weekly mercantile reviews reported little change in general business activity, however, pointing out that unseasonably warm weather was again hampering the movement of goods at retail.

Prices advanced on New York bond market. New York — (AP) — The bond market responded today to the news of a decrease in money in circulation, and to the Federal Reserve board by advancing irregularly, although trading continued to be moderate. The turnover in the over-the-counter market was limited.

Increasing circulation in recent months, as the result of hoarding has been recognized as a serious factor in the money market. The bond market as banks found it necessary to keep in unusually liquid condition in order to meet the withdrawal demands of their depositors. This condition necessitated the steady sale of bonds which depressed the market.

In addition to the rising bond price, today's dealers reported an increasing number of inquiries for public utility issues of legal investment standing and for second grade rail loans. The limited turnover indicated the narrowness of the market.

United States Treasury and Liberty loans experienced the most general strength, although their gains were not so large as those of other groups. These issues enjoy the favor of banks because of their ready marketability. The recently issued treasury 3 1/2 and 3 1/2 rose about 1/2 point each, the largest gain of the government obligations.

Chicago and Northwestern 4 1/2 of 1940, Erie 5 1/2 of 1937, Missouri Pacific 5 1/2 of 1938, St. Louis San Francisco 4 1/2 of 1938 made good gains among the second grade rails. Atchafalaya General 4 1/2 strengthened on heavy sales.

Industrial loans continued quiet but most of them held steady or gained fractions. Western Electric 5 1/2, Shell Union Oil 5 1/2, Standard Oil of New York 4 1/2 and Phillips Petroleum 5 1/2 were moderately higher.

With a few exceptions the turnover in public utility issues was limited. American Telephone & Telegraph 5 1/2 and American Foreign Bond 5 1/2 were active and higher. Postal Telegraph 5 1/2, International Telephone Debenture 5 1/2, Duquesne Light 4 1/2 and Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1/2 gained fractionally on small sales.

BUYERS IN CONTROL OF HOG PRICE TREND

Game of Raising Prices Finds Purchases Holding Whip Hand

Chicago — (AP) — The game of raising prices to attract volume resellers and hog producers checking market to prevent price declines found buyers holding the whip hand today. Arrivals of 27,000 included 7,000 consigned direct to packers and state hogs were carried over unsold from Thursday. With this leverage early buyers were able to force concessions of 10c-15c and prices plateaued at $4.50, under a low point reached on Tuesday, when the top of $5.15 and average drove cost of $4.80 set a new low record for twenty-three years. Lights were wanted at $4.50 to $4.75, while $5.00 was bid for choice butchers.

Common to plain native steers and butchers stock mostly on the grass and short feed order, made up the slim run of 2,000 cattle offered here today. Eastern shippers found only a few loads suitable for their needs and it was largely a quiet cleanup session at steady prices.

Packers' direct billings accounted for 2,500 head of the 15,000 live market estimated in the day's supply. No selling took place at the outset, but initial surveys indicated a relative shortage of high grade lambs and there were held at firm prices.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
Chicago — (AP) — (U. S. D. A.) — Hogs 27,000 including 7,000 direct, slow, 10 to 25 lower than yesterday's average; heavy and sows off most; 220-300 lbs. 4.85 to 5.00; top 5.05; 140-210 lbs. 4.30 to 4.85; pigs 4.00 to 4.50; packing sows 4.25 to 4.50.

Light light good and choice 140-160 lbs. 4.40 to 4.65; light weight 160-200 lbs. 4.50 to 4.80; medium weight 200-250 lbs. 4.70 to 5.00; heavy weight 250-300 lbs. 4.75 to 5.05; packing sows medium and good 275-300 lbs. 4.15 to 4.40; slaughter pigs good and choice 100-130 lbs. 4.00 to 4.50.

Cattle 2,000; calves 700; sprinkly better grade steers and yearlings selling mostly on the grass and short feed order, made up the slim run of 2,000 cattle offered here today. KAUKAUNA GRID TEAM PREPARED FOR TWO RIVERS

Coach Little's Squad Still Entertains Hope for Championship

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school football team is not definitely out of the race for championship honors in the Northwestern Wisconsin interscholastic conference and will meet Two Rivers high gridder here Saturday afternoon in the fourth game of the season. The local aggregation has lost but one game, that being a close contest in the mud to Menasha high. Menasha now leads the conference, but meets some tough opposition before finishing its schedule. Friday evening the Blue and White gridder meet a strong eleven from Sturgeon Bay in a night game which may mean a conference championship for Menasha, the first since it has been in the conference.

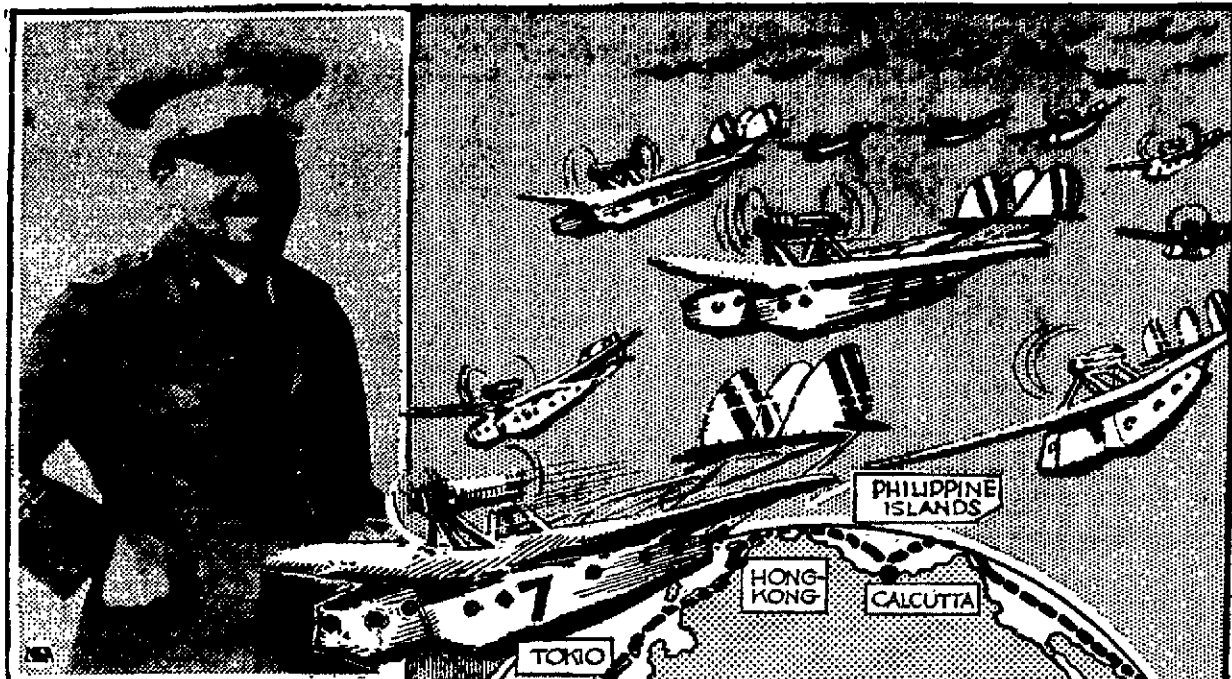

Kaukauna's game with Two Rivers should be an easy victory for the Kaws, as the Rivermen have lost all four games. Last week the Two Rivers outfit was treated to a 40 to 6 thrashing by Sturgeon Bay.

Most of Kaukauna's regulars will receive a rest Saturday because of tougher opponents the following week, for the team meets Oconto on Saturday, and on the following Wednesday faces the supreme test against Appleton high in a charity tilt at Whiting field, Appleton.

Schwendeman, Kays quarterback, who has been pounding opponents lines to average about five yards to a play, will be out of both Two Rivers and Oconto games because of sprained ligaments in his right leg.

Coach Little's starting lineup will include Sager and Vils at ends, Jager and Bodde, tackles, Block and Bartch, guards, Weirauch, center, Lukke at quarterback, Judas and Kuchelmeister, halfbacks, and Van Dyke, fullback. Changes in the lineup would be Schuler for Lukke, McCormick for Van Dyke, and Koch for Vils.

Hazardous World Flight Route of Italian Seaplanes

In the most hazardous flight ever attempted by a squadron of planes, General Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, will try to take 24 Italian seaplanes on a flight around the world. He will start at Rome and proceed to Bolama, Africa, New York, the Panama Canal, Vancouver, Canada, Japan, China, the Philippine Islands, India, the Suez Canal, and back to Rome. General Balbo is shown at the left. The map on the right gives the proposed route of the flight.

4 CARS INVOLVED IN STREET COLLISION

One Motorist Cut About Head and Injured on Back in Crash

Kaukauna—Four automobiles figured in a collision on West Wisconsin-ave Thursday noon when a small delivery truck owned by the Klarer Meat Market, and driven by Aloyst Wolf, struck another truck owned by Fargo's Furniture Store, and then careened into a group of parked cars, according to police. The two parked machines, which were slightly damaged as the Klarer machine just grazed them, belonged to E. Mitchka and Joseph Wolfinger. Both of the trucks also were damaged.

The driver of the Klarer machine who was accompanied by Cletus Klarer, injured on his head and neck, and on his back. He also received numerous bruises. Klarer, H. Folken, the driver of the Fargo machine, were uninjured.

SOCIAL ITEMS

Kaukauna—Mrs. N. A. Matthes entertained 14 ladies at a 1 o'clock covered dish luncheon at her home on West Wisconsin-ave Wednesday. After luncheon bridge was played and prizes went to Mrs. Charles Raught, Mrs. William Harwood, and Mrs. C. W. Stribley. Mrs. W. C. Lehman of Appleton was the out-of-town guest.

Lady Knights of Columbus met in the clubrooms on Wisconsin-ave Thursday afternoon. Prizes in five hundred were awarded to Mrs. J. McCord, Mrs. W. C. Kilgus; in bridge to Mrs. Otto Koch and Mrs. V. Ryan and in schafkopf to Mrs. Frank Goetzman and Mrs. Gerend. A lunch also was served. Mrs. John Gerend, delegate of the Catholic Women's Study club to the annual conference of the Green Bay Diocese of Catholic Women, submitted a report of the conference held Wednesday.

Women's Aid of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church will meet Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4, in the Lutheran school house. The program will be: Mesdames Albert Schiefelbusch, Herbert Specht, D. Staesser, and H. Treptow.

At the next regular meeting of Trinity Dramatic club, the Evangelical Lutheran church Tuesday evening, Nov. 3, business pertaining to a play which will be given in November will be discussed. An educational topic also will be discussed. The club meets in the Lutheran schoolhouse.

The next regular meeting of the Aid Association of Lutherans will be held Nov. 20, it was decided at a meeting of the club Monday evening. At the meeting officers for the coming year will be elected.

EXPECT TO COMPLETE DAM IN WEEK OR TWO

Kaukauna—Work on the new dam across the Fox river here is expected to be completed in about a week or two. Work on a wing wall remains to be completed. A dredge is in operation on the site of the wall, preparing it for the new abutment. A walkway will be placed over the completed spillway. A wooden shack to house the equipment for raising and lowering the sluice gates is being constructed.

START WORK GRADING SOUTH END OF MAIN-AVE

Kaukauna—Grading was being done by workmen of the south road district on the southern end of Main-ave Friday morning. Heavy traffic on the road has caused it to become rutted, as most of the road is an extension of the old street and has only a light covering of stone over the clay, causing it to become soft.

SWEEP UP LEAVES ON PRINCIPAL STREETS

Kaukauna—Some of the workmen of the north road district are sweeping up leaves on the principal streets. The leaves are swept in the piles and then removed to the city dump to be burned. Each fall the work has to be done as a part of the cleanup campaign. After the first frost the men will clean the gutters of leaves.

PICK DELEGATES TO ANNUAL CONVENTION

Kaukauna—Delegates of the Woman's club who will attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association in Milwaukee Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 2 and 3, are Mrs. Olin G. Dryer, health officer of the club, and Mrs. Coll Flynn, club nurse. Alternates are Mrs. James T. O'Donnell and Mrs. Albert Leigh. The delegates and their alternates were elected at a meeting of the club Oct. 13.

Loan To Albania Tightens Italy's Balkan Influence

Rome—Italy's latest loan to Albania, totaling about $20,000,000 spread over ten years is another step in a steady march toward making the newest kingdom in Europe little more than a province of its bigger trans-Adriatic neighbor.

In the six years since Italy made her first loan of $10,000,000, consolidating Ahmed Zog, not then king, as premier, the big kingdom has brought the smaller one ever more into her own pattern.

The driver of the Klarer machine who was accompanied by Cletus Klarer, injured on his head and neck, and on his back. He also received numerous bruises. Klarer, H. Folken, the driver of the Fargo machine, were uninjured.

MOVE TO BOLSTER STEAMSHIP LINE

Shipping Board Approves Transfer of Vessels to New Organization

Washington—(AP)—With shipping board approval, a huge combine of east and west coast interests will attempt to breathe new life into the United States lines, for months an ailing limb of the nation's maritime life.

Except for minor details, the board has accepted a proposal of the United States Lines company of Nevada, a newly organized group, to take over and operate the Leviathan and other ships sold by the government to the company formed by Paul W. Chapman of New York.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Pwllie, Wales—The king of Bardsey island has abdicated. John Roberts declared himself king of the island by virtue of being the largest land owner and has ruled over his "kingdom" for several years. His subjects were the 40 farmers and fishermen who inhabit the island on which there were no taxes to pay and no one votes. Roberts said he wanted to be nearer civilization and a doctor.

Washington—President Hoover has found time between conferences and other duties to pose for his portrait. The picture, which shows him seated in his big chair at the head of the cabinet table is being done by Miss Violet Beatrice Wenner of Chicago. It will be exhibited at the Chicago World's fair.

New York—Periophthalmus Scherzer lives in the Malay jungles. His name means, "I can do it." It climbs up into a tree and winks its eye. Then it goes down to the edge of a pool and takes a shower both by flying water over its back. All of which is very remarkable, Carveth Wells, explorer, says, when you learn that Scherzer is a fish, in fact the only fish that can wink.

TAX PROPOSALS TURNED DOWN BY COMMITTEE

Chicago—(AP)—The executive committee of Gov. L. L. Emmerson's revenue commission disclosed last night that it would not recommend a state amusement tax or an increase in the gasoline tax as a means of overcoming financial difficulties of the various governmental units of the state. The governor refused to disclose all of the subjects he would enclose in his special legislative call.

With the aid of two hogs, one of which snaggled the fish's tail, Lewis Alloupe of Hamilton, Mo., landed a 55-pound catfish.

COMMERCE BOARD CAN SUPPLY FACTS ON MANY SUBJECTS

Figures Available on Everything from Two-pants Suits to Goldfish

Washington—Some years ago it began to be observed that pants wear out quicker than coats and today two-thirds of the suits sold are two-pants suits.

Authority for that: The Department of Commerce.

You can find out almost anything over there, thanks to the great fact-finding organization built up by Mr. Hoover when he was a cabinet member. Get curious about the popularity of the two-pants suit, for instance, and they will cite you a survey showing that last season 67 per cent of suits sold were two-panted, and that 47 per cent of all suit buyers ask specifically for such suits.

Besides its own statistical and factual research, the department culls facts and figures from all the trade associations, many commercial organizations and the other government bureaus.

People eat more green vegetables than formerly, but how much more? Well, consumption of green foods has doubled in the last seven years. Consumption of stored root vegetables—potatoes, turnips and things like that—has declined proportionately.

Why do drug stores offer an increasingly varied line of merchandise? One reason is that the average drug store is visited by far more customers per day than any other type of store. The National Drug Store Survey in St. Louis indicates that five times as many people visit a drug store daily as enter the average food store. Only a very few drug stores in the country can get along by filling prescriptions. "Most druggists," says Wroe Alderson, director of the survey, "will be forced to become merchants to an increasing degree."

This probably isn't frightfully important, but the rising of goldfish for the market has now become a million-dollar-a-year industry.

Research experts of the restaurant industry—a $2,600,000,000-a-year business—report that:

One of every four city inhabitants eats at least one restaurant meal a day.

Restaurants get six per cent of every consumer's dollar and 18 per cent of every out-of-town visitor's dollar.

There's a restaurant for every 559 persons in the "Urban United States."

Restaurants buy $1,165,000,000 worth of food products a year.

Of every dollar you pay the restaurant man he spends 45 cents for food.

The annual replacement rate for restaurant china is 48 per cent and the annual glassware replacement is 250 per cent.

The commerce experts all stress the fact that American business is now giving more respectful, earnest attention to the consumer than ever before. They cite, as indicating present-day consumer reactions, statements of Paul H. Nystrom, Columbia University's professor of marketing which may be summarized as follows:

American consumers are demonstrating growing sensitiveness and unrest toward retail stores, prices charged, qualities and styles offered and service rendered.

Hand-to-mouth buying seems to be increasing.

Consumers object to high-pressure selling.

Advertising appeals offering aids to youthful appearance, beauty and health still get across.

PRaises NEW EGG GRADING SYSTEM

Poultry Expert Says Law Will Enable Farmers to Get Higher Prices

Playing with dynamite is a child's pastime compared to making changes in the prehistoric method of egg selling in vogue declares J. B. Hayes, expert with the poultry department of the state department of agriculture, in a bulletin issued this week. Eggs are the only thing sold from farms that are not sold on grade or weight, Mr. Hayes points out.

"Eggs are the only thing that we sell from farms not sold on grade or weight. The old method placed a premium on poor quality. Poor quality is more easily produced with less effort than good quality. The quality to be produced is determined by the price," he said.

"Grade buying," in Wisconsin that became effective Oct. 15 applies only as buying grades. The regulation requires the first receiver to pay the producer on grade. The first receiver may then sell the eggs by any grade or combination he wishes. The consumer profits only in that better eggs will be marketed by the producer.

"Grade buying will not lower the buying price. Any candler with high school intelligence, can be taught to grade and candle eggs in a few hours. The cost of candling and grading is less than 1 cent per dozen."

"Every producer of quality market eggs will receive a higher net price. Every producer of poor quality eggs will receive a lower net price. The difference between good and poor eggs is management. The net price to be received is determined by the management after the egg is laid by the hen."

"Comments concerning this new method of selling eggs in Wisconsin will be welcomed from you people."

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press New York—(CFA)—Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., arguing plans with Gerard Swope, is suave and conciliatory where his father would have been fiery and challenging. Never, having held private employment, the senator began his public career on the theory that molasses catches more flies than vinegar. He is 36—the youngest United States senator since Henry Clay.

If anybody rounds up the congressional insurgents into a solid bloc and ends their guerrilla warfare, it is conceded in Washington that it will be "Young Bob." He has actively begun that enterprise in helping to mobilize the Wisconsin house delegation and enlist with them insurgents from other states. Back of his plan for a national economic council is a vast amount of research and documentation. He believes the insurgents should overcome their insularity and join in constructive efforts. He hints that progressive support will be given to any democratic candidate in 1932 who will endorse a platform which the insurgents can accept.

Halting and hesitant in speech when he entered the senate in 1925, he became a skilled debater, with membership on the powerful finance committee. He is perhaps the most fastidious dresser in the senate, but affects none of the trappings of the Tom Heflin sartorial school. Medium in stature, he looks a bit like a rich young playboy. On Jan. 13, 1928, he made a rousing speech, warning the country that the stock boom would end in disaster and introduced a resolution to get the federal reserve on the job to end speculation. The senate graybeards smiled and the resolution was sidetracked.

Here's another youngster, standing in the shadow of his thirty-year-old Abner Doherty, New York assemblyman from the fifteenth district, is pretty nearly the sole issue in this New York state election next Tuesday. If tammany whips him and gathers five more assemblymen up-state it can punish Senator Samuel H. Husted, and of the fifteenth and sink the Husted committee, thereby, like Androcles, removing the thorn from the paw of the tiger, and getting it in shape for the democratic convention. Furthermore, it would take to Albany a solid democratic delegation from New York county—20 years ago, the county had seven republican assemblymen.

Young Mr. Moffat has had five years in politics, first as assistant United States attorney. He is an aristocrat, born and reared in the now embattled silk stockings fifteenth district, whence comes Congresswoman Ruth Pratt. Finishing at Groton, Harvard and Columbia, Mr. Moffat went to the legislature to fight for party reform. He introduced the first resolution for a state investigation of New York city. Tammany has been gunning for him. Republicans charge that it is "colonizing" the district.

Mr. Moffat says his real life interest is geology and he will devote the rest of his life to rocks if he is defeated.

For a man of large affairs, Harry A. Wheeler is almost as retiring as the modest trouble-shooter for the gas company, summoned in emergencies to Walter S. Gifford and modest steps of state. Mr. Wheeler, Chicago financier and industrialist, was a member of the white house industrial conference in 1918. In 1917, as Illinois food administrator, he devised the "fair price" plan, nationally adopted. He was one of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

To drink Hills Bros. Coffee, after you have been drinking other brands, is certainly a revelation. It has a marvellously rich, satisfying flavor that no other coffee has.

This delicious difference is due to the way Hills Bros. Coffee is roasted. Instead of roasting in bulk, as others do, Hills Bros. use a process they invented and patented. It's called Controlled Roasting.

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow of sand, so Hills Bros. Coffee is a uniform roast, such as no bulk method equals, is absolutely assured. A perfect, unvarying flavor results in every pound.

This delicious coffee comes to you in vacuum cans. Air, which makes coffee go stale, is removed and kept out of these cans. Ordinary "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale! Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"
If October 31st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:20 a. m. to 11:35 a. m., and from 3:25 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:50 a. m. to 2:10 p. m., from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m., and from 9:05 p. m. to 11:05 p. m.

The planetary aspects of October 31st denote a very little of significance, and the day promises to be uneventful. The influences are enlightening from a spiritual and mental, but not from a materialistic point of view. Those who evince an intelligent interest in artistic, literary, or philosophical subjects will find themselves gaining immensely in broadness of view and comprehension. The expected news will be heard from abroad.

A child born on this October 31st will be determined, possess great concentrative powers, and display patience in working out details. It will be self-possessed, have ample assurance, without being boastful or unpleasantly aggressive. Its affections will be deep, but chiefly centered on one person.
You, if born on October 31st, have exceptional ability, and this only needs cultivation to make you a shining light in your community, if not in far larger circles. You undoubtedly, are destined for a brilliant career, unless you ruin it by your own foolishness and rashness. The chief danger to be avoided is your susceptibility to the opposite sex. You will never love deeply and constantly, but will be the willing victim of many infatuations, serious whilst they last, but soon forgotten when they have run their course.

You are frank, direct, and straightforward. You have a keen sense of humor, and are partial to social life. Fond of travel, a keen observer and entertaining, you are made welcome in all congenial circles and your friends and admirers are legion. Although able to weave dreams, you are intensely practical and have much common sense.

If a woman, you are more logical than intuitive. You possess much charm and grace. Your emotions are not very deep, and your nature is flirtatious.

Both men and women evince a keen interest in public affairs, and have a large share of civic, as well as national, pride. They never, however, take their opinions from others; rather do they help others to form opinions, as they are convincing and persuasive talkers.

Many Movie Stars Take Part In Tennis Tourney

BY JESSIE HENDERSON

Hollywood—(AP)—Half of Hollywood is taking tennis at the moment either from the player or the spectator standpoint. Not even the Olympic games scheduled for next summer in Los Angeles have caused the furore of excitement in the movie colony that has been precipitated by the approaching Herbert Brenon tournament at Malibu beach on Nov. 1st.

Director Brenon has already held two tennis tournaments on his swell court at Peter Pan cottage. The third promises to be pretty nearly all star, since Bebe Daniels, Kay Johnson, Dolores Del Rio, Ben Lyon, Warner Baxter, Olive Brook, Richard Barthelmess, William Powell and Ronald Colman will be among the participants. John Gilbert has also signed up to swing a racquet if he's signed from New York in time. They're not playing just for fun either. There will be prizes and a grand and glorious trophy, to say nothing of a buffet lunch. The trophy will be presented to the winning feminine player by the host and the prizes will be given to the various winners by Dolores Del Rio, Leo Carillo, Carl Laemmle, Sr., Olive Brook, Warner Baxter, William Powell, Richard Barthelmess and Ronald Colman.

Forty men devotees of tennis and 34 women devotees are already spending their spare moments on practice in anticipation of snatching one of these prizes. Among the women players are May Bundy, Florence Sutton, Irene Seiznick, Louise Dudley, Vollet Doeg, Gladys Doeg, Ethel Bruce, Lou Rosson, Dorothy Robinson, Mildred Brook, Katherine Bennett, Katherine Archibaud, Adele Rogers St. John, Hyland, Douglas Winnell, Marie De Silva, Gertrude Leonard, Louise Burke, Margaret Phipps and Jessica Barthelmess.

BITING THE HAND
Jacksonville, Fla.—Patrolman Jimmy Taylor has an extremely troublesome prisoner. Every five minutes he would yell for a glass of water. Finally, in order to get some rest, Taylor filled a bucket and took it to the prisoner. Instead of gulping the water down as he had done before, the prisoner took the bucket and flung the contents in Taylor's face.

High School Meets Oshkosh Gridders Saturday Afternoon

LAST VALLEY CONTEST HERE THIS SEASON

Mortell and Peotter Both Expected to Play; Invaders Strong

BY GORDON R. MCINTYRE
APPLETON football fans will get another look at the high school team tomorrow afternoon on George A. Whiting field when the Orange clashes with Oshkosh high school in a valley conference game. The highs have been rambling over the highways and by-ways of the Fox river valley since the afternoon of Sept. 26 when they clashed with East Green Bay here and thrilled a fair sized crowd by coming from behind in the last half and winning 13 and 12. It was a great game but because of the peculiar schedule the team hasn't been home since.

Game Transferred
Saturday's game with the Sawdust city aggregation was made possible only through the good graces of Oshkosh high school authorities. Last year Oshkosh played here so this fall it was Appleton's turn to go to Oshkosh. Because the locals played but on valley game here Oshkosh authorities agreed to transfer the game but decreed the "gate" be split.

Starting the season in a blaze of glory, Oshkosh was hooked to be a valley contender until one afternoon when the team met East Green Bay and the Red Devils did a lot of mauling and defeated the Purple with ease. Since that West Green Bay also has taken the team over the bumps and another club whose name just now escapes us.

Oshkosh will have a line that compares favorably in size with the Appleton line. Perhaps the tackles will be a bit larger and some of the boys taller, but unless the club has improved, Appleton will show more fight and charge than the invaders.

Fast Backfield
In the backfield there are several fast running boys and they have an aerial attack that works very well. Although they failed to score on East, the Sawdust City team chased the ball to the Red Devil two yard line on one occasion and to the ten yard line on another. In both cases the drive was made by straight football and showed Oshkosh to have more than an ordinary football running attack. In the latter instance the Oshkosh club appeared headed for a touchdown, losing the ball when an over-anxious back fumbled as he hit the line of scrimmage.

Appleton's chances for a victory depend entirely on whether the fast Mortell and Peotter are ready to start the game and whether they play most of the afternoon. Both have been nursing injured knees, but are supposed to have recovered to the point where, with the aid of braces to prevent recurrence of the injury, they are ready to go.

Mortell, one of the best triple threat men in the Valley years is needed by the squad to make the backfield function at its best. He is an unerring passer, can run with the ball if it's necessary and is considered one of the outstanding punters in the valley.

Peotter, Neller Ends
Peotter at one end is needed to hold up the wide end runs Oshkosh will try Saturday. He is a veteran performer and knows how to break up interference so that either he or his mates can knock off the opposing ball carrier. Jim Neller gets the other end assignment, will carry the ball on a few plays and can be depended upon to snag his share of passes. Playing his first season at end he has shown very well on defense, too.

Kreich, who last week broke into the scoring column with a touchdown and Webber, are slated for the tackle positions again. The guards will be Klein, slated as an all conference performer this year and Beck, who has been playing good ball since he returned to the game after a knee injury. Jack Bowers and Frank Dean probably will change off tossing the ball at center.

In the backfield Mortell will have as running mates, Dave Dietrick at half back, Joe Verrier at quarter and Krohn at half. The combination gives the Orange one of the best balanced backfields in the Valley, a group of boys who can hit the line with the ball or dash out and snare a forward pass.

Other Valley games Saturday will have Manitowish taking another licking at Fond du Lac, East Green Bay with a battle on its hands at Marinette, and West Green Bay risking its honors at Sheboygan.

ILLINOIS SLASHES GRID SEAT PRICES
Champaign, Ill. — (AP) — Anyone wishing to watch Illinois' last two home games of the Big Ten season, in which Wisconsin and Chicago will be met, may do so at the cost of $1. The university board of athletic control has reduced the price of seats in the south stand, behind the goal posts, from $3 to $1, in an effort to increase attendance figures. Games will be held on the days of Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. Reserved seat prices will remain at $2.

GOPHERS MINIMIZE REPORT OF ATTEMPT TO "FIX" U. W. GAME

Minneapolis — (AP) — University of Minnesota authorities today were inclined to minimize reports that three Gopher football players had been offered money to "throw" Saturday's game with Wisconsin.
"The attempt is absurd," said Dean J. C. Lawrence, assistant to the president. Coach H. O. Crisler doubted that the letters had been written in a serious vein.
The opinions were expressed after investigation of receipt of three letters, postmarked Madison, Wis., by Captain Clarence Munn, Jack Manders and Kenneth MacDougall of the varsity eleven. The writer, signing himself, "W. E. B.," said he would pay $1,500 if they would "do their best to throw the game away to the Badgers."
Another rumor was that a student had been telephoning Minnesota plays to Wisconsin.
"There is nothing to it as far as I can learn," said Crisler.

INDUSTRIAL CAGERS WILL BAR SEMI-PROS

Pass Resolution Banning Use of Men Taking Part in Pro Contests

Representatives of four industrial group basketball teams met Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. and considered plans for the 1931-32 league. Teams represented were United Cigars by Art McCanna, Fox River Paper by Alfred Gelbke, Co. D., 127 Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard by Earl Zuehlke, and the Fourth ward Bears by Norman Kneip. The association basketball committee of Herbert Voeks, Clarence Baez and Basil McKenzie also attended.

Besides the groups represented last night a fifth team has indicated it will play. The remaining three teams will be sought from the Pure Milk company, Kaukauna Mulford's, Coated Paper, O. R. Kloebe and Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

The group last night decided the entry fee should remain at $10, the money to be used for expenses and returned at the end of the season if the necessary wages.

A resolution which prohibits any basketball player who participates in an advertised pro game or receives any compensation from competition in the league, was offered by C. O. Baez and seconded by Norman Kneip and passed by the group. Another meeting of the league will be held next Wednesday.

VALLEY HARRIERS TO GATHER HERE SATURDAY
Valley conference cross country teams will meet here tomorrow morning for the annual Fox River valley meet. The run will start at 11 o'clock over the Lawrence college course south of the city. The start and finish is at Whiting field.

Appleton is entering a team coached by Kenneth Laird. The Orange harriers will depend on Froger and DeYoung to gain most honors for them but do not expect to win the meet. Manitowish, despite the fact Orville O'Neill is missing is looked to have the best all around team and therefore the best chance to cop. The Shipbuilders are defending champions.

BADGERS CONFER WITH M. U. GRID OFFICIALS

Milwaukee — (AP) — George Little, Wisconsin athletic director, and Professor J. F. A. Pyre, the University of Wisconsin faculty athletic representative, yesterday conferred with Marquette university officials here regarding the probability of a Badger-Marquette football game.

Con J. Jones, Hillsop athletic director, and Bill Coffey, alumni chairman of the athletic board, represented Marquette at the conference. While no announcement was made of the conversations, it was stated nothing was mentioned about appealing to the Big Ten regarding the game.

PLAN BOXING CLUB FOR Y. M. C. A. MEMBERS

Appleton boys and young men, members of the Y. M. C. A., who are interested in receiving boxing instruction have been asked to meet at 7:30 Saturday evening at the association, to organize a boxing club. The boys will consider a program for this winter and probably decide to have someone fairly experienced in the milt game, give them lessons. V. S. Ryan, physical director of the association, will have charge of Saturday's meeting.

LAURENCE college will give everything over the first $150 from the Lawrence-Carleton game to charity. It was decided at a meeting of the athletic board a few days ago. The game is Saturday, Nov. 14, at Whiting field.
But unless the townfolks get behind the project and buy tickets to the game indications are the charity fund won't profit by much. However, the sacrifice on the part of Lawrence is worthy of note.
Under the plans offered Lawrence will pay Carleton a $750 guarantee. The first $150 taken at the gate will go to pay expenses of putting on the game and charity gets the rest.
Lawrence games haven't been well attended this season for various and sundry reasons. The college has taken a loss on every contest and its offer is a most gracious one, for every dollar would help decrease the deficit.
The college is to be congratulated for its generosity—now it's up to the townfolks.
Curtailed of sports at Lawrence for the remainder of the year already has started or at least is being started.
At a meeting of the athletic board a few days ago the Vikings checked up football receipts for the last few games and they were all red. Rain marred what might have been a good crowd at the Beloit game and then Wisconsin played Purdue on the Saturday Carroll was here and the fans went to Madison.
Old Man DePlession also has caused some loss in attendance this fall, just as he has at other big universities.

Who Did This?
Valders — C. E. Bray, Valders high school basketball coach, emerged from the Sheboygan-Appleton high school game, which he umpired, with a badly injured ankle. He will be forced to move around on crutches for several weeks. An X-ray examination failed to reveal a fracture, but his entire leg was badly bruised.
Manitowish high school cagers, have started drills for the winter sport. Four veterans from last year, Williamson, guard and captain; Langenkamp, center; Spindler and Koopke, forwards, are the nucleus around which the team will be built.

"It wasn't Kabat" says a Milwaukee sports writer in commenting on the fact some Wisconsin player didn't play so good Saturday against Peen because he was performing for the grand stand.
The scribe says he won't tell who it was because it's up to the coach to chastise the boy.
That's the first time we've heard of the particular scribe being so considerate of gridgers.
The correspondent writes there should be nothing but praise for Kabat. "He didn't play as good a game as against Purdue but he was in every play."
And says Lawrence Perry, well known eastern scribe: "Kabat especially was submerged all afternoon and those who have been hailing him as a certain choice for an all-American would have been obliged to reverse their opinion had they seen him play on Saturday."
"Pennsylvania was not a game Wisconsin had to win this year, particularly if losing it might mean the winning of a Western Conference game," said Coach Glenn Thistlewaite, recently discussing the walloping last Saturday.
"When my backfield did not function as it should have in the Pennsylvania game," said Coach Thistlewaite, "and when McGuire failed to show the keen judgment he used the week before I might have made changes but I did not think it was a good idea. Not until I found out McGuire's cold was as serious as it was did I replace him; the last thing I wanted to do was to ruin the confidence of my men and I was willing to experiment in order to find out things that may help us greatly this week."
"It was too bad to lose the game, but from the things I learned in the game I am far from being downhearted. We will come back this week against Minnesota and give everything we possess. There will be no letup for the next three weeks."
And unless if you have failed to notice it, there folks, is a coach who realizes he's handling boys and is willing to risk his job in an effort to train and teach those boys and build them up, as he thinks they should be built.

Herman Strutz of the Glasses and Hy Strutz of the Lumbers staged a little battle of their own in the games but Herman had better support than Hy and an 83 pin handicap and his team copped. The game scores were 823 to 818, 858 to 865 and 834 to 768.

GOPHERS, BADGERS, INDIANA REACHING BIG 10 CROSS ROADS

Three Teams With Wildcats, Have Not Been Defeated This Year

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO — (AP) — Three more Big Ten football teams, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Indiana, will reach the crossroad of the championship season tomorrow.

The trio, with Northwestern, has not been defeated in Big Ten competition, although Indiana has a scoreless tie with Iowa on its books, and if they run according to predictions, there will be only two teams left in the select circle after tomorrow's chores have been done.
Minnesota and Wisconsin meet at Minneapolis in the top game of the conference schedule and appear so evenly matched predictions on the outcome are few and conservative. Both have good backfields, but the Wisconsin line, playing as it did against Purdue, may be the margin of difference.
Indiana must meet Ohio State and the Buckeyes will enter the battle with a big edge. Indiana walloped Chicago's weak out-fit 22 to 6, last week, but was unable to score on Iowa the week before. Ohio had power enough to hold Northwestern's powerful Wildcats to 10 points last Saturday and figure to win.

Cats In Good Condition
Northwestern will be after its third straight victory over Illinois at Evanston, and probably will get it without much trouble. The Wildcats will be in even better physical condition than they were last week against Ohio, while Illinois have shown little improvement. The Illini, who have lacked speed, especially in the line are wishing for a wet day, figuring rain will be more of a handicap to the Wildcats than to themselves.
Purdue is primed for a big scoring effort against Chicago, aiming at 40 or more points. The Maroons' big hope is to score on the Boiler-makers and maintain their record of counting against all Big Ten opponents this season to date. Chicago lost to Michigan, but got a touchdown, and managed to do the same against Indiana.

Iowa has a forward passing offense ready for the invasion by George Washington University of Washington, D. C., and the Hawkeyes who have not scored a point this season, are confident of victory. Michigan and Notre Dame, the Midwest's representatives in the east this week, are favored over Princeton and Carnegie Tech, respectively. The Irish are planning on taking the Skibos in style, with Pennsylvania to be met next week at South Bend.

Vincennes, Ind. — Frank Hollingsworth, Vincennes, knocked out Chick Branch, Indianapolis (2).
Marquette, in its 7 to 0 win over Boston college last week, came out of the game injured necessitating a revamped lineup for tonight. It is doubtful if Johnny Sisk, half-back, will be able to be in the lineup against "ole Miss."

CANZONERI'S TITLE BATTLE IS A "BUST"
Newark, N. J. — (AP) — Tony Canzoneri's title "defense" against Philie Griffin of Newark proved just a light workout for the chunky little New York Italian.

Canzoneri, who holds two world's championships, risked the lesser of the, the junior welterweight crown, last night but had no trouble at all keeping it in his possession, winning the decision by a wide margin after ten easy rounds. For the first five rounds, when Griffin appeared disturbed by the thought of being in the same ring with a champion, Tony hardly exerted himself at all. Then when the Newark boy began to fight, Canzoneri fought back, had Philie up against the ropes a couple of times and put on one flurry that looked as if he might knock out his rival before he eased up again for the finish.

The spectacle proved somewhat displeasing to the crowd and after losing a chorus of "Go home, go home," many of the fans gave up and went home early.

Philadelphians — Leonard Dixon, Lehighville, Pa., outpointed Pat Haywood, Kansas City (3).
Evansville, Ind. — Billy Frick, Evansville, outpointed Sammy Ward St. Louis (10).
Muncie, Ind. — Billy Brent, Pittsburg, and Harry English, Toledo, draw (10); Johnny Conley, Toledo, outpointed Johnny Griffiths, Pittsburg (10).

Torre Haute, Ind. — Joe Cooper, Torre Haute, outpointed Donald Fagg, Clinton (10); Jackie Purvis, Kokomo, Ind., outpointed Frankie Stevens, Boston (6).

VIKING FROSH MEET CADETS; VARSITY IDLE

Lawrence college freshmen gridgers have been on their very best behavior this week for tomorrow they invade Delafield again for a game with St. John Military academy gridgers. The yearlings and the cadets met several weeks ago in the mud and the score ended nothing and nothing. Since then the St. John team has won all its games and wants to erase the scoreless tie. The frosh are more than willing to let them try.
Viking varsity gridgers will rest this weekend, no game being scheduled for them. Next week they meet Carroll college for the second time this season in the feature of the annual Pioneer homecoming.

DUBLINSKY DRAWS MATCH WITH KAPLAN

Chicago — (AP) — A ten round bout between Harry Dublinsky, young Chicago lightweight, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., former world featherweight titleholder, has been added to the Bat Battalino-Earl Mastro championship fight card at the Chicago Stadium, Nov. 4.

KIMBERLY GRIDDERS END SEASON TOMORROW

Kimberly—Coach Harper's Red Devils will close this year's season on the grid when they play the Kaukauna "B" squad at Kimberly Saturday afternoon. This game should be closely contested for the down river team has been cutting capers lately. If the Red Devils win Saturday's tussle they will end the season with three wins and three defeats.
The team won its first game from Pulaski by a 13 to 0 count; dropped the second to the strong New London team by a 33 to 0 count; won the third from the Menasha "E" squad by a 19 to 0 score; dropped the fourth and fifth to Chilton and St. Mary of Menasha each by a one touchdown margin. Last Saturday the St. John gridgers trampled over the Kimberly squad for a 33 to 0 win.

MISSISSIPPI, M. U. GRID TEAMS CLASH

Milwaukee — (AP) — The University of Mississippi tonight meets the Marquette university football team here for the third Dixie Intersection football game in the history of the Milwaukee school.
In 1925 Marquette defeated Mercer, 30 to 0, in Milwaukee and a year later the Golden Avalanche cruised to Birmingham to defeat Auburn, 19 to 3.

NATE BARRAGER IS SIGNED BY PACKERS; MEET BEARS SUNDAY

National Pro Grid Champions Leave for Chicago Saturday Noon

GREEN BAY—Nate Barrager, center of the University of Southern California eleven in 1929 reported for practice with the Packers here today. The Green Bay Football corporation completed a deal today with the Philadelphia Yellowjackets for Barrager after about 10 days negotiation.

Barrager should be a valuable addition to the national champions. He weighs 220 pounds and is but 25 years old. He is an aggressive performer and his brilliant play this fall with the down-trodden Yellowjackets has been one of the high spots of the professional football season.

Barrager's home town is San Fernando, Cal., where he was a high school star before entering Southern California. Nate was a frosh ace at U. S. C. and then played three years of varsity football. One season he was used as a running guard. Russ Saunders, packer back, was a team mate of Barrager's at U. S. C. both on the freshmen and varsity elevens. Both received all-American mention in their senior year.

Second Year of Pro Ball

This is only the second year that Barrager has played professional football. He started with the Minneapolis Redjackets last fall. When the Gopher outfit went on the financial rocks during the first week in November, Barrager, along with Joesting, Wilson, Ward, Nydahl, Pharrmer and a number of the other Redjacket's luminaries were sold to the Philadelphia Yellowjackets. At this time, the Packers picked up Ken Halcraft, end; Chief Franta, tackle and Orin Pape, halfback, who were also members of the Minneapolis club. None of these gridgers, however, remained long on the Packer payroll.

When the 1930 all-American pro football team was selected, the choice for the center position was very close. Hagberg, Brooklyn, got eight votes; Westoupal, New York, seven and Barrager six. This placed the former Southern California star on the third squad. It is seldom that a first year man ever makes the grade on any of the three all-star teams but Barrager, along with Bronko Nagurski, was so honored last season.

Neither Hagberg nor Westoupal are playing professional football this fall. Hagberg has a diseased bone in his shoulder while Westoupal's health is bad and he is living on a ranch in Arizona.

Leave Saturday Noon

Coach E. L. Lambeau and his Green Bay Packer football squad, will leave for Chicago over the Milwaukee road at 12:30 p. m. Saturday. A special parlor car will carry the national champions on the train which is scheduled to reach the Illinois metropolis at 5:45 p. m.

During their sojourn in Chicago, the Packer headquarters will be at the Knickerbocker hotel, which is located across from the Drake, where the Green Bay club stayed when the Green Bay club stayed when playing the Bears in 1930.

"See You in Chicago," that is a favorite expression in Green Bay this week and it is safe to say that hundreds are going from here, not to mention other hundreds from all over Wisconsin and upper Michigan. Both the Milwaukee and Northwestern roads are running special excursions for the game. However, the railroads won't carry all the Packer followers as many automobile parties will hit the trail for the Windy City late Saturday or in the early hours Sunday morning.

2 COUNTY FACTORIES NAMED PRIZE WINNERS

Two Outagamie-co cheese factories were among the prize winners in a contest conducted during the last year by the department of horticulture of the University of Wisconsin. There were 186 factories enrolled in the competition to for improvement in appearance of buildings and grounds. The state was divided into three districts with Outagamie-co in the northern section. Other counties in this section were all counties north of LaCrosse, Adams, Monroe, Juneau, Winnebago, Calumet and Manitowoc. Outagamie-co winners were:

Spring Brook Cheese factory, town of Grand Chute, Arthur W. Schneider, proprietor, placed third; and Town Line Cheese factory, town of Freedom, Joseph W. Merkel, proprietor, placed fourth in the northern section. Both of these factories won places in a contest conducted in 1930 by the Appleton Kiwanis club.

New Manager Of Dodgers Will Have Changes To Make

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright, 1931

NEW YORK — (GPA) — An impending shakeup of the Brooklyn Dodgers by Max Carey, the new manager, holds the attention and interest of National league baseball circles today. New player deals already are under consideration and it is possible that one of these may spell "finis" for Dazzy Vance, star hurler, as a member of the Brooklyn team.

Cincinnati and Brooklyn gave the league as an organization more concern in 1931 than the other teams. Cincinnati began without promise and gradually worked toward improvement. Brooklyn began with great promise, failed to get a better start than Cincinnati, and from its bad beginning recovered some ground, but never assumed the part in the fight for the pennant that had been expected from it.

National league owners at first were loath to attribute this to the inability of Wilbert Robinson, manager of the team, to guide it successfully. The real break came when a direct issue was created between the manager and a portion of the Brooklyn press. Downright antagonism, following a dispute that took place shortly after mid-season, when the manager became involved in a controversy with certain of the Brooklyn writers, precipitated a condition in which the league became indirectly involved.

Won't Be Satisfied

Max Carey will not be satisfied with the team as it stands at present. What changes may be made will not be publicly announced until he has time to make a formal estimate of how much playing strength he has and ascertain if he can make changes. He will be disposed to trade, if propositions are made to him that are worth while, but the question confronting him is whether any trades can be made by which he will not be asked to sacrifice what he considers to be needed strength for his team.

Vance would be taken by two clubs if the pitcher could be had without offering in exchange what they consider too much. The other side of that angle is whether Brooklyn is well enough equipped in pitching strength to let Vance get away, although he was not as successful in 1931 as had been expected of him.

The pitching staff, however, is not all that Carey the new manager, must try to rebuild. Necessity has forced upon him a reconstruction of both the infield and the outfield and that is going to be a task

FRIEDRICH WILHELM GAINS SUCCESS AS BREEDER OF STOCK

Former Heir to German Crown Raises Livestock at Cecilienhof

Berlin — (AP) — Once in line for occupancy of the throne of a mighty empire, now hoping to breed horses good enough for the German army's remount service. That is the status of Friedrich Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former crown prince, when he is not living at Cecilienhof, near Potsdam, or in Berlin, he spends his time on his large estate at Oels, in Silesia, trying to be a successful raiser of fine livestock.

"I hope in time to become purveyor to the army remount department," he wrote a couple of years ago, and he still has that goal before him.

"I don't pretend to be a regular farmer," he said recently. "To be that one has to be trained from childhood and I never had that sort of training."

Likes Machinery

"Of the three things that used to occupy my mind—military affairs, political questions and technical inventions—the first two under present circumstances are barred to me. I have always been attracted by machinery, especially internal combustion motors, the progress of which I have followed since their inception."

"This had been with me ever since my youth, and I still thoroughly enjoy looking over a modern locomotive, a ship's turbine plant or the latest type of automobile and airplane motors."

The ex-crown prince's pet car is a bright red limousine. It makes which will tax Carey's ingenuity to the utmost.

It is only a question of time before the team will have to obtain a first baseman and a shortstop. It is not wholly lack of skill which forces this action on the new manager but natural deterioration in physical ability, the old process of slowing up.

Wright at shortstop helped to make the Brooklyn team a contender in the season of 1930 but in 1931 his underpinning began to bother him again and Brooklyn found it was weak both at short and second base. Thompson had been taken over from Philadelphia to play second for the team but he failed almost from the start to make the infield the strong defensive quartet that had been sought.

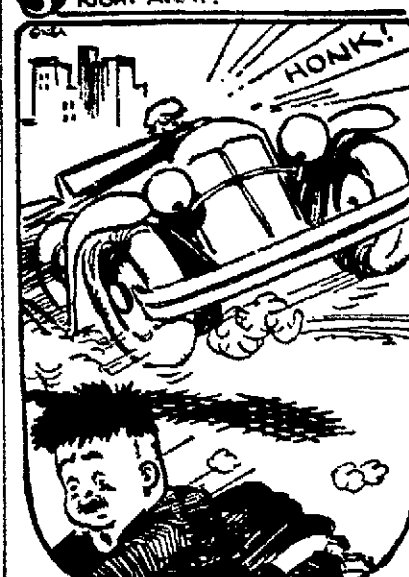

The changes in the outfield did not work out as well as expected because O'Doul was unable to bat well in the early days of the season.

To rebuild the infield and the outfield is a huge task for a manager with experience, to say nothing about one who is starting his career and Carey fully realizes that he has something ahead of him which will tax all of his mental resources and test any quality he may have of managerial ability. Brooklyn will not start the season of 1932 a marked contender as it did in 1931.

The pitching staff, however, is not all that Carey the new manager, must try to rebuild. Necessity has forced upon him a reconstruction of both the infield and the outfield and that is going to be a task

Physicist Plans Search Of Cosmic Ray In Alps

Mt. Evans, Colo. — (AP) — Dr. Arthur H. Compton, American Nobel physics prize winner of the University of Chicago, has gone from the Rockies to the Alps to seek whether creation is running down like an eight-day clock, or constantly renewing itself.

Dr. Compton has just sailed for the Alps to continue experiments which took up much of his summer here. He measured at Mt. Evans the intensity of cosmic rays, the exceedingly penetrating radiation that falls ceaselessly day and night alike upon the earth from some unknown source in outer space.

It is the contention of Dr. Robert A. Millikan, another American Nobel prize winner in physics, that these rays are the energy escaping from tremendous forces at work in space joining electrons together to produce new matter.

Other noted physicists hold that the rays come from equally vast forces engaged in tearing apart matter already created.

"These rays are associated with atomic disintegration or atomic formation," said Dr. Compton. "I have no side to take. That is why I visited Colorado."

"Cosmic rays are a form of radiation similar to the X-ray and more intense at high than low altitudes. We think the rays come from the interstellar space."

"Although the cosmic ray is of no immediate importance, yet in the search of cosmic events, including the search of the universe, it is of vast importance."

"Energy in the cosmic ray is as important as starlight. That would seem to be unimportant, but in the summing up of cosmic factors, star light is one of the most vital, because it represents sun radiation."

RESIGNATION OF VETERAN PREMIER TIES UP HUNGARY

Count Julius Karolyi Succeeds Stephen Bethlen as Prime Minister

BY MILTON BRONNER
London—The golden bullets of France, having shown England and Germany where to get off, have found a new and shining victim. It is Count Stephen Bethlen of Hungary.

For 10 years he was prime minister of Hungary. But now, what with France's money, he has resigned. His friend, Count Julius Karolyi, who had been his foreign minister, succeeded him.

Karolyi has formed a new cabinet containing most of the figures of the old Bethlen government. It is known that Karolyi has always been Francophile.

Hungary has hauled down the red, white and green flag of Italian friendship and hoisted the French tri-color. Thereby demonstrating that money talks—and that French cash vociferates French policy and French politics.

This is one of the most significant things that has happened in European politics in the last decade.

Restored Peace

Bethlen had restored internal peace, and had been clever in external politics. His little country was surrounded by enemies, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania were all within the French orbit. They composed the Little Entente.

They let Hungary know that any monkey business about taking a Hapsburg as a king would be the signal for their drums to beat and soldiers to march.

But Italy and France were at cross purposes all over the map. Whenever France took a step, Mussolini took a counter-step. So Bethlen offered his friendship to Hungary. Bethlen was quick to seize it. Hungary was not too isolated. It too, had a powerful friend.

Then, unfortunately, clouds that had long been gathering broke into storm. Hungarians woke up one fine morning to find that their government and issued a decree closing the borders and the banks.

That it became known that French bankers might grant $25,000,000. Suddenly Bethlen resigned. Karolyi ascended to power.

It is everywhere expected that his coming to power will mean that Hungary will pass out of the orbit of Italy, Germany and into the orbit of France. Germany had no money to lend; Italy could give Hungary only fair words.

The gold-gorged coffers of France were the solution.

Karolyi was at great pains to deny that France had exacted anything politically. He laid stress on friendship for Italy, at the same time saying he wanted to build up amicable relations with France. But everybody knows that is eye-wash. France wanted Hungary as another bastion against Germany and Italy. French money got what France wanted. One of the shining proofs of it is that at once France signed a new commercial agreement with Hungary.

Karolyi is a member of one of the great Magyar families. It was his distant cousin, Michael Karolyi who headed the republic after the World War was lost. He is counted one of the Hungarian legitimists who is in favor of a Hapsburg king when the time comes.

As foreign minister under Bethlen, in spite of the pro-Italian policy of his chief, Karolyi often reiterated the necessity of cultivating close relations with France. Now he has them. Hungary is tied by French purse-strings. It is one more step in France's steady policy of military, political and economic hegemony over Europe.

PLAN 24-HOUR CLOCK AT MILWAUKEE OFFICE

Milwaukee—(AP)—When it's half past seventeen o'clock at the Milwaukee post office it will be time for the night shift to go out to lunch. Plans to introduce a 24-hour clock were announced there today by Postmaster Peter F. Plasecki. The new clock will be an experiment and Postmaster Plasecki, who as a soldier has ordered taps to sound at 22 o'clock, hopes that the change will eliminate confusion between reports of work done by day and night forces.

But in the Plasecki home, where postal regulations are null and void, dinner is still served at 7:15 p. m.

2,000 OWNERS SEEK SPECIAL LICENSES

Madison—(AP)—More than 2,000 automobile drivers in Wisconsin want to get special auto license numbers for next year.

Theodore J. Dammann, secretary of state, has already authorized between 2,000 and 3,000 special license numbers but announced that future applications must take their license numbers in four or five digits.

The most exclusive number is IX. It is issued to the governor.

THRILLS OF SLAM BIDDING

To Contract players bidding for Slams provides a tremendous thrill—much greater than is experienced in setting an opponent for the equivalent penalty score. This, I think, is quite natural, because the bidding and making of a Slam has in it the elements of a real achievement. Inflicting a penalty, however severe, somehow for most Contract players lacks the allure of bidding and making their own contract, and particularly for a Slam. This psychological factor, therefore, enters largely into Contract bidding and results in defeating many hands worth game but not worth Slam. The formula for safe Slam bidding is not at all difficult to understand, and losses at this phase of the game would not be great if players would use the non-or-trick yardstick to measure the Slam probabilities as accurately as they use the same means to determine game probabilities.

From out in the great open spaces of the West, where men are not only men but frequently expert Contract players as well, the word comes to me from Mr. Arthur N. Cowperthwaite of Tucson, Arizona, the story of an actually bid and beautifully played Slam.
